Proportional Representation
Bill, Supported by Vote

BALLOT DISSOLVES
WORKING COALITION

New Liberal-Conservative
Alliance Is Prospect
After Budget Measures
Have Passed Commons.

BY CHARLES M. McCANN.
London, May 2.—What is interpreted as a grave blow to the labor party and a step which brings a general election nearer in Great Britain, has come as a result of labor's refusal of a flat demand by the liberal party to support their legislation.

The house of commons Friday rejected the proportional representation bill by a vote of 238 to 144, despite the fact that Herbert Asquith, liberal leader, had written MacDonald asking the laborites to support the bill.

Arthur Henderson, labor's house secretary, announced that the government would leave the bill to a "free vote," namely, that it would not instruct laborites how to vote on the measure. The defeat followed.

Split in Coalition.
It is generally considered that the liberal and laborites have parted company as a result of the vote, and that after the passage of the budget, the liberals will obstruct laborite legislation. Then, when they consider that the proper moment has come, they will join the conservatives in defeating the labor party and forcing a general election, according to general belief.

During the discussion Friday a liberal member interrupted Henderson with the cry:

"Turn them out!"

Henderson Defiant.
"All right, go on with it," Henderson defiantly answered, continuing, "It does not help in governing if, when a government fails to take a certain course this threat is hung over it. We are governing under circumstances more difficult than those faced by any government in history."

Then, in a more conciliatory manner, he explained the reasons why it was impossible for the government to give the bill official support.

In reality, the bill, providing for proportional representation in elections, was made a test case in order to feel out labor sentiment toward the liberal party.

Labor to Caucus on Course.
Nearly 100 laborites, including some members to the government, voted against it.

The liberal party will hold a meeting next week to decide on its course of action. The budget is so popular that they would not venture to try to defeat labor until the budget is passed, but after that some definite action will probably be taken. The laborites will also probably start active propaganda against the laborites throughout the country, in preparation for a general election, which seems more imminent daily.

Marquis Curzon, speaking at a conservative mass meeting Friday, said that his party was "preparing with all energy in our power for the struggle that cannot now be long delayed."

PLANT AGREES TO SETTLE SUIT OF HELENE JESMER
Is Conceded Worth $100,000

New York, May 2.—Record prices have been set both for a quart bottle of whisky and a girl's lost beauty, when the settlement of Helene Jesmer's suit against Philip Morgan Plant, a young millionaire, for an amount reported to be no less than $100,000.

Miss Jesmer, once a prize beauty of the Greenwich Village Follies and for $500,000, charging that her beauty, her chief business asset, had been irreparably ruined when Plant's car crashed into a tree one night in November, 1920, while she was riding here with Plant and a party of Yale students from New Haven. Helene, her once pretty features scarred and marred for life, presented a pathetic figure as she told how Plant's love had cooled when he saw her new face.

Testimony brought out the fact that the party had purchased a quart of whisky at a roadhouse, but differed as to how many drinks Plant had taken en route. The young millionaire's defense was that Helene had thrown her arms around him while he was turning a curve, causing him to lose control. At no time, however, according to Plant, did he drive the car more than 20 miles an hour.

The turning point came Thursday when the speedometer of the wrecked car was introduced as mute evidence that Plant and his friends had been mistaken. The speedometer, in the same state as when it was found following the accident, registered at 55 miles. Police testimony also refuted that of the defense.

The jury waited two hours in a packed courtroom Friday while the opposing counsel fought out the terms of settlement. Finally came Helene and the lawyers. This time the girl's face was covered with a heavy brown veil. After the settlement had been announced, and the attorneys complimented on it by Justice Gavegan, she walked slowly from the court, not elated but apparently content with the outcome.

The jurors rushed to congratulate her, indicating that their verdict would have been in her favor. Seven of the 12 said afterward that they would have awarded Helene a minimum of $150,000 and felt the verdict more likely would have been $200,000.

FREDERICK KILLED

F. P. Baldwin, Companion,
Seriously Injured—
Both Prominent Peach
Growers of Marshallville

Marshallville, Ga., May 2.—P. Roe Frederick, 60, prominent Marshallville peach grower and business man, was instantly killed early this evening when the automobile in which he was returning home after a business trip into the country overturned and plunged down a 15-foot embankment three miles south of here.

F. P. Baldwin, Frederick's traveling companion and owner of the machine, was so seriously injured that physicians held little hope for his recovery.

The accident was not discovered until 10:30 o'clock tonight, approximately three hours later.

A party of automobilists on the road saw the ill-fated motor car as it careened down the embankment and upon investigating found Frederick lying several yards from the wrecked machine, his skull crushed. Baldwin was trapped in the wreckage, with his neck unhinged under a seat. He almost had reached the point of suffocation when rescuers arrived. He was unconscious then and at a late

OLLIE TAYLOR HELD AT POLICE STATION

Ward Claims Taylor Used
Pistol After Daniel Came To His Home To Start a Quarrel.

Shot three times and not expected to recover from his wounds, W. H. Daniel, known to the police as "Frank" Daniels, of Holderness street, late Friday afternoon absolutely refused to give the police any information in regard to the shooting.

The victim was warned by physicians at Grady hospital to which he had been carried immediately after the shooting that his chances of recovery were slim, but this failed to alter his determination to withhold the name of his assailant.

Wounded Three Times.
The shooting occurred in the apartments of J. R. ("Hap") Ward, 222 1-2 Ivy street, about 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. Daniel received three pistol bullet wounds, one in each leg and another in the hip. The latter wound may prove fatal, doctors at the hospital stated. They believe it ranged upward and entered the abdomen, penetrating the intestines.

Detectives B. F. Moon and C. F. Wills, who have been detailed to investigate the shooting, were told by Ward, they stated, that Daniel was shot by Ollie Taylor, who lives in Ward's apartment, during a fight which followed an attempt by the wounded man to "pick a quarrel" with Ward.

Taylor Is Arrested.
Taylor was arrested at 1:15 o'clock this morning by Officers E. E. McCarty and L. B. Portwood after a chase of several blocks, and is held on a charge of disorderly conduct without bond, pending the outcome of Daniel's wounds.

Beyond admitting that his address was 245 Woodward avenue and his age 25 years, Taylor refused to give out any statement.

Otis Stephens, a friend of Taylor, who was with him at the time of his arrest, claimed to know nothing of the shooting, and no charge was made against him.

The car occupied by Taylor and Stephens was seen by officers on Harris street, and after a long chase, was overtaken at Piedmont avenue and Ellis street. Taylor surrendered without a struggle.

"Trial to Start Quarrel."
Officers Moon and Wills stated that Ward told them Daniel had visited his home several times recently and on each occasion had been in a belligerent mood. When he appeared Friday afternoon, Ward said, he began to abuse him and then threatened to kill him.

Taylor then interfered, according to Ward, and a fight ensued, during which Ward told them Daniel had visited him, all bullets taking effect.

Investigating officers advanced the theory that the fight was the outgrowth of a dispute over liquor.

Four hours after Daniel was shot, Mary Oglesby, negro, employed as Broken Love Nest Auction

GOTHAM EDITORS ASKED TO VIEW REMNANTS
Announced in Invitations

New York, May 2.—The fine feathers of another broken love nest are going on the auction block.

"A representative of your paper will be permitted to view the palatial home of Mr. Edward W. Browning, which he fitted at a cost of $250,000, during a period of two years, as a love nest for his wife, Mrs. Nellie Adele Browning, who eloped last year to Paris with Dr. Wilen, a young dentist."

Thus reads the announcement that the promoters of the latest love nest auction sent to metropolitan editors Friday night. Several were rumored to have swooned in the rush to editorial desks resulting from the intense yearning to take advantage of the gracious presentation to view the remains.

The announcement, crowded with the pathos that evidently blooms in the heart of the auctioneer, continues:

"Mr. Browning has refused offers to dispose of the furnishings as a

Clutch of Ice on Ailerons
MAJOR MARTIN MAY BE VICTIM OF FROZEN CONTROLS
Looms as Menace of Death

BY EVAN J. DAVID.
(Copyright, 1924, United States, Canada and Great Britain by North American Newspaper Alliance.)
On Board U. S. Coast Guard Cutter Algonquin, by Wireless via Chignik, Alaska, May 2.—Is another Arctic tragedy to be recorded in the disappearance of Major Frederick L. Martin, commander of the round-the-world flight?

All day today and last night the wireless operator on the Algonquin has had his ear to the receiving phones, seeking the answer.

For whatever news there may be from Major Martin is likely to first reach us over the radio.

It is not generally known that Major Martin's flagship, Seattle, which left Chignik for Dutch Harbor last Wednesday morning at 11:30 o'clock, is equipped with a small radio set, having a mean sending range of 250 miles, sufficient to reach our ship, providing the plane itself has not come to grief. The Algonquin is now off Wasnesenski, Alaska, about half way between Chignik and Dutch Harbor, and directly in the proposed line of flight. We have been cruising for the past 24 hours, in and out of the hundreds of bays and harbors that dot this barren coast line, on the constant lookout for some trace of the lost flyers.

Believes Martin Safe.
There is a general belief here that the terrific storm of the last few days, reaching at times a velocity of 100 miles an hour, may have driven the plane far out to sea, or wrecked it completely. After Major Martin's dramatic flight from Kanakak to Chignik, however, I am inclined to believe that the Seattle is staunch enough to weather almost any gale.

There is one danger which no one, so far, seems to have considered, although Major Martin himself spoke of it to me the day before he left Chignik. This is the freezing of the ailerons.

The driving sleet and snow, freezing in between the hinges of his "flap,"

SURCHARGE RATES
NOT REASONABLE

Special Examiner Recommends
Discontinuance of Extra Pullman Charge
by the Railroads.

Washington, May 2.—Passenger fare surcharges paid by Pullman travelers to railroads are held unreasonable and discontinuance of the practice is recommended in an examiner's report to the interstate commerce commission made public today. Arguments in the case before the commission are assigned for May 8.

Considering that the railroads are saved the capital investment in Pullman equipment and other facilities necessary to maintain and to an extent operate the cars, and that most of the railroads are receiving substantial payments out of the charges collected for the Pullman service proper, the report says, it is believed that the time has come when the commission may well eliminate the surcharge.

Investigation into the reasonableness of the surcharge rates was instituted by the commission at the request of travelers' organizations, chambers of commerce, shippers, hotel associations, and other associations.

The examiner recommended that greater use of upper berths in Pullman cars be enforced by the railroads to reduce the expense of providing sleeping car service, and advanced the opinion that even if the railroads are not adequately repaid under their Pullman contracts for hauling the heavier Pullman cars, the roads have no right to impose a surcharge "to recoup losses growing out of their improvidence in failing to make contracts which would afford them proper compensation for the service of hauling the cars."

The Pullman surcharge is 50 per cent of the amount charged for the space occupied by the passenger, and was established August 20, 1920, to produce additional revenues with which to meet an increase in wages, awarded to railroad employees by the railroad labor board.

BONUS MEASURE

House Approves Conference Report—President
To Refer Bill Before Taking Final Action.

Washington, May 2.—Congressional action on the soldier bonus bill was completed today with adoption by the house of the conference report on the measure, which now goes to the president.

The report, already approved by the senate, was given house approval by a viva voce vote.

During twenty minutes' discussion which preceded action on the report, Representative McKenzie, republican, Illinois, sharply criticized house members for accepting a senate amendment which would confer the bill's benefits on female yeomen of the navy.

"Most of them received more pay during the war than they ever had before," he said. "Granting them a bonus, simply gives the president a just ground for vetoing the bill. It is a plain hold-up."

To Coolidge Monday.
Representative Garner, Texas, ranking democrat on the ways and means committee, replied that there was more reason to include female yeomen than field clerks, a great proportion of whom, he declared, came from officers of senators and representatives and never were near the firing line. He pointed out that Mr. McKenzie,

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Washington, May 2.—Tax returns were voted open to public inspection today by the senate as republican insurgents and democrats combined in the first major attack on the revenue bill.

The publicity proposal was bitterly fought by republican organization leaders who were willing, however, to agree to inspection of the returns by certain congressional committees, as voted by the house, and approved by the finance committee.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, led the fight for full publicity of tax returns, and was supported in the debate by Senators Brookhart, Iowa, and Howell, Nebraska, republicans, and McKellar, Tennessee, and Reed, Missouri, democrats.

Vote Was 48 to 27.
The amendment of Senator Norris, which provides that all tax returns shall be open to examination under rules governing inspection of public documents generally, was adopted 48 to 27.

Advocates of the proposal insisted full publicity was "fair and American," and would result in the return to the government of millions of dollars more in revenue by detection of tax evasions.

Senator McClellan, Connecticut, a republican, was the only member to oppose the measure.

FAITHFUL WIFE
KEEPS SAD VIGIL

San Diego, Cal., May 2.—Struggling to maintain composure, Mrs. Frederick L. Martin, wife of the missing American world-flight commander, has kept a sleepless vigil since word first came that her intrepid husband was missing.

"I'm hoping for the best," she said Friday night. "These are terrible hours for me and my boy. I am afraid I will never see my husband alive again."

Mrs. Martin and her eight-year-old son, Robert, have been living here with a sister, Mrs. Lewis Upp, since the major left to fly around the world.

On a table in the living room of the Upp home there is a map of the Pacific and Alaskan coast, with a line drawn on it—marking Martin's progress—ending at a point over the sea just off Chignik. The line was not there by Mrs. Martin so that at a glance she might see just where her husband's plane stopped each day.

She hopes to make the line longer, to draw it all around the world and back home again, but her intuition tells her the end of the line on her map may mark the approximate point where a brave man met his death.

Washington, May 2.—Despite the mysterious disappearance of Major Frederick L. Martin, commander of the United States round-the-world flight, Wednesday morning the little squadron will carry on.

The three remaining ships, now at Dutch Harbor, Alaska, have been ordered by Major General Patrick, chief of the army air service, to continue their flight immediately since further delay might halt the trip definitely. The fliers will take off the moment weather conditions are favorable.

Flight Must Proceed.
Before taking this action President Coolidge was advised of the serious situation by war department officials and it was said on his behalf that the incident was regrettable, but that it should not halt the flight.

Decision to send the three planes on their way was made when it became known the destroyers attending them were running low on fuel, and that unless they started immediately, the vessels would have to put back to naval bases and thus hold the trip up for at least another month.

UPSHAW IS SPEAKER AT FLORIDA MEET

Sanford, Fla., May 2.—The state convention of supporters of William G. McAdoo, democratic candidate for the presidential nomination and an entrant in the Florida presidential primary to be held on June 3, opened here today with more than three hundred delegates in attendance. Speeches in Mr. McAdoo's behalf and discussion of plans for a state-wide campaign featured this afternoon's session. A state organization will be effected tomorrow morning, it was announced. So far Mr. McAdoo and Senator Oscar W. Underwood are the only entrants in the Florida primary.

Congressman William D. Upshaw, of the fifth district of Georgia, delivered the principal speech today, declaring that Mr. McAdoo was entitled to the democratic nomination on many grounds. Mr. McAdoo, Congressman Upshaw said, "handled $40,000,000, $40,000,000 during the World war, without a shadow of suspicion on his name; was a pioneer in woman's political and financial emancipation, and favors a rational international policy endorsed through a referendum of the people."

Senator Carter Glass and Hollins Randolph, McAdoo's campaign manager of Georgia, were expected to address the convention tomorrow morning.

TAX RETURNS OPEN FOR EXAMINATION

publican member of the finance committee, assailed the proposition as unfair to competitive business organizations whom he declared would be forced as a result to reveal business secrets. Furthermore, it would cut down government revenue, he argued, "for it will add a thousand-fold to the temptations now existing for persons to indulge in all manner of evasion."

Thirty-two democrats, 14 republicans and the two farmer-labor senators supported the amendment, while two democrats and 25 republicans opposed it.

An amendment offered by Senator McKellar, opening to public inspection all claims for abatements and refunds and the decisions on the claims, also was adopted on a similar lineup.

Reject Radio Tax.
On reconsideration of the committee amendment imposing the radio tax, a number of senators turned loose a fierce assault on the proposition, which was defeated by Chairman Smoot, of the committee.

Senators Wadsworth, republican, New York, and Dill, democrat, Washington, led the attack against the proposition on the ground that it was a "nuisance tax levied at an infant industry." They were joined by Senators Smith, democrat, South Carolina, and Howell in extolling the educational benefits of the radio.

While approval was given to the proposal for a board of tax appeals, Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, announced he would seek changes in the proposed operation of the board later. A motion of Senator Norris cutting from $10,000 to $7,500 the salary of the members was adopted.

Chairman Smoot announced he would ask for another vote on the proposal to limit deductions on account of interest payments to the amount for which they exceeded income from tax exempt securities, which was turned down after a three-day debate.

Mellon Plan Rejected.
This was one of two proposals of Secretary Mellon which, it was claimed, would bring in $80,000,000 additional revenue annually by checking evasions of taxes. The other, seeking to limit capital loss deductions to 12 1/2 per cent, was rejected by the finance committee, which action was sustained by the senate without a record vote. Both had been approved by the house.

The Walsh inheritance tax amendment would allow exemptions from the tax for estates left to husband or wife of $25,000; to parents, children, grandchildren or adopted children of $10,000, and to others of $5,000.

pers," made it extremely difficult to maneuver the ship. Such a condition would be dangerous enough in normal flying weather, but in the face of a 100-mile wind might easily result in a disastrous crash.

That this trouble with his aileron worried Major Martin is evident from his personal account of the flight from Kanakat.

Took All His Strength.
"After we took off from Kanakat," Major Martin said, "the continual sputtering of the motor kept me wondering if she was going to stop and set us down in the raging water of Portage bay."

"Flying out over the sea proved to be no better than flying over the bay, so I banked back and then discovered that the aileron was not responding easily and that they must be covered with ice and snow. It took all my strength to make an oblique turn. We flew around the harbor three times with the engine turning 1,650 revolutions per minute, but the revolutions did not stop and the aileron did not work any easier. Even at an altitude of 16,000 feet the wind and snow continued to blow so violently that we could not see more than a few hundred yards around us. I had to give all my strength to handling the machine because of the stiff aileron."

The sputtering of the engine, caused by a badly adjusted carburetor, was remedied before the flyers left Chignik, but the danger of freezing the aileron was still present and, in a gale almost twice as strong as that at Kanakat, may have caused serious trouble.

$10,000 DAMAGE CAUSED BY FIRE

$10,000 damage was done by a fire Friday night to the plant of the Atlanta Potato Chip company, at 567 Marietta street, the good work of firemen partially preventing more serious damage.

W. G. Sullivan, owner of the concern, said that he was cooking chips when the grease became ignited and spread to parts of the plant. He stated that his concern would begin supplying chips again within 48 hours. Pringle and Smith are owners of the building.

BONUS MEASURE GOES TO COOLIDGE

In a bonus bill which he introduced, and included field clerks among beneficiaries.

The bill will not reach the white house before late tomorrow at the earliest and probably not before Monday or Tuesday of next week as it must be engrossed and then signed by the speaker of the house and the president pro tempore of the senate in the presence of the respective bodies.

President's Attitude Veiled.
Arriving at the white house, the bill will be sent to the treasury department for compilation of an estimate of its cost, and for preparation of a report by Secretary Mellon as to his views. It also probably will be sent to the veterans' bureau for a report from Director Hines relative to its administrative provisions.

White house officials do not expect the measure to come actually before the president until late next week.

Mr. Coolidge has given no indication of his attitude toward the bill as passed by congress. His last public expression of views relative to a bonus was in his Lincoln day address at New York in which he opposed a bonus as a matter of principle.

SOLONS DISAGREE ON NAVAL SLUMP

ten's program, the investigation and the elevation of guns on first-line destroyers, was cold. The investigation was opposed on the ground that the naval affairs committee already has the necessary facts—presented during several months by naval experts—and that Britain's desire to arouse the public through this means would be hindered because many facts cannot be disclosed.

Appropriation Shelved.
An appropriation of $5,500,000 for elevation of guns, provided in a bill already introduced by Britain, was objected to on the ground that a decision from the state department should first be considered regarding its legality under the treaty, which has been questioned, and it was also pointed out that the appropriations committee had rejected such an outlay this year.

There will be an effort, however, to get through legislation already before the house, providing eight additional cruisers of 10,000 tons each and the reconditioning of six first-line ships, including conversion into oil burners, and installation of anti-aircraft armament. These improvements are needed soon, it was pointed out, to make up present discrepancies.

Butler said he will attempt to get these bills before the house next week. Senator Hale said his committee will take up this legislation, but he does not feel hopeful that the senate will get to it this session because of the press of other legislation.

The view of many members was expressed by Representative Darrow, of Pennsylvania, who has given much attention to the needs of the navy.

Navy Below Treaty Mark.
"We have fallen below the mark in those things which are allowed by the treaty," he said, "and it is there that we need to build—light cruisers, submarines, airplanes. Japan excels us in the number of light cruisers, so does Great Britain. Our first-line battleships, too, are not up to the mark, many of them needing repairs. Four of them are now out of commission because of defects of the engines."

An interesting view of the situation was expressed by Darrow, which he says is shared by many. In event of another arms limitation conference, he said, the United States would be much more qualified to exert a strong influence if her navy was up to its full strength, so that her voice would be commanding. It was the strength of the United States navy which insured the success of the last parity, he said.

U. S. WORLD FLIGHT IS SENT FORWARD

however, been entirely abandoned by air service officials.

Telegrams were dispatched Friday to Lieutenant Risell, in charge of the first division of the flight, instructing him to strain every resource at his disposal in the search for the missing ariator. Every noon and in the afternoon the search is being searched.

It is hoped that Martin may have found shelter in some secluded cove as he did the last time his plane was brought to earth by inclement weather, and that he may be in some out-of-the-way place safe from imminent danger.

SEARCH FOR MARTIN TURNS TO MOUNTAINS.

Corvado, Alaska, May 2.—Searchers for the "Seattle" flag plane of the United States army's round-the-world fliers, and her pilot, Major Frederick G. Martin, tonight extended their operations to the mountain fastnesses of the Alaskan peninsula and the saw-tooth inlets of its northern coast.

According to word received here, Major Martin may have turned down west when leaving Chignik last Wednesday and landed in the peninsular mountains, where he may have been forced down in one of the numerous bays that cut into the northern coast.

The search turned inland today when vessels combing the sea in the vicinity of the Shumagin islands reported no trace had been found of the missing plane.

To Use Dog Teams.
Canneries and supply stations between Chignik and King Cove were reported preparing dog teams to go back into the hills and follow the maze of trails over the rocky contours of the peninsula. Every accessible spot where the plane might have landed will be searched.

Every available kind of craft from canoes to sailing vessels will be summoned to conduct a search on the north coast parallel to that which is continuing unabated in the southern waters.

Two courses were available for Major Martin when his plane roared away into the face of Wednesday's gale. He could have steered for the Shumagin Islands, to the southwest of Chignik, with the intention of turning in a northwesterly direction after passing the heights of Andronia Island.

Two Air Lanes Were Open.
This course at first was thought the most feasible, because the "Seattle" would have been afforded some protection from the mountains along the peninsula.

Martin, with visibility low and because of the clouds and the gale, may have tried to use the highest peaks along the peninsula for his guide posts and so was drawn in almost a westerly course from Chignik, and landed in the mountains.

Information that was withheld, however, both at the executive office and at the capital as to what steps were contemplated by the state department if congress approved the suggestion that exclusion be deferred for a period after the other sections of the bill are in operation.

House and senate conferees today took up the Japanese provisions as the first of the major items in controversy, but when adjournment was taken after nearly five hours of unbroken discussion, Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, head of the senate delegation, would only say that "no decision had been reached."

The conference was understood to have determined, informally, however, that its authority under the established procedure of both houses would extend to a recommendation for material changes in the exclusion clause, because of the senate amendment making them effective immediately, whereas the house bill set the operative date at July 1. Precedents were quoted for the statement that this change was sufficient to throw the whole subject open.

Come Up Today.
Consideration of exclusion will be resumed by the conferees tomorrow with an all-day, and possibly night session in view. Senator Reed's program still being to submit a report early next week.

Considerable doubt was expressed among senators today whether the conferees would accede to the president's program, and more doubt that it would be ratified by the senate if presented in a report. Inquiries along this line invariably brought replies which involved a repetition of the usual majorities by which first the exclusion sections and then the bill containing them, had passed both the house and senate.

ON BARKLEY MEASURE

Washington, May 2.—Republican organization leaders in the house let loose another attack today against the Barkley bill to abolish the railroad labor board and drew a vigorous cross fire from friends of the measure.

Five members of the commerce committee were allotted time to discuss the plan of democrats and republican insurgents to attempt on Monday to discharge the committee from consideration of the measure and to bring it to an immediate vote.

Chairman Winslow of the committee declared the measure was never set aside "except for the temporary convenience of the committee to effect its orderly procedure." He said the committee spent 72 days considering the Barkley bill and was warned by the house against "rushing" a measure like the Barkley bill without hearings.

Representative Sanders, of Indiana, a member of the republican steering committee, told the house defeat of the Barkley bill would be a "service to railroad employees and to the public."

Representative Hawes, of Missouri, a democrat on the committee, joined the republicans in criticizing the discharge move, declaring the committee had not refused to consider the bill "on any guilty of the charge of suppression."

Representative Huddleston, of Alabama, also a democratic committee member, took up the discussion in defense of the discharge move. He had been made to "pigeon hole" the bill in committee, which he asserted has "no time to report anything but bridge bills" and is "delaying the game" by consideration of several bills pertaining to the labeling of merchandise.

Two weeks have been consumed, he said, in question and answer, and stay away from the hearing because they know "nothing is going to happen."

There's no use bluffing around," he declared, and if a majority of the house is against the bill, now is an "opportune time" before election to "find it out."

Mr. Huddleston described the bill as a "constructive piece of legislation" which would "promote harmony," and asked the house not to leave it to the "tender mercies of the commerce committee and that would mean it would be buried."

COOLIDGE FAVORS BAN ON JAPANESE

Washington, May 2.—President Coolidge announced to the white house callers today his indorsement of the proposal that immigrants ineligible to citizenship be excluded from the United States.

Efforts to obtain alteration of the immigration bill's provision in this respect were explained by spokesmen for the president as being designed merely to phrase the new policy in the most courteous manner possible. White house officials were said to view as certain the eventual enactment of the exclusion into law, and desired only that it give the least practicable offense to friendly nations.

There's no use bluffing around," he declared, and if a majority of the house is against the bill, now is an "opportune time" before election to "find it out."

Mr. Huddleston described the bill as a "constructive piece of legislation" which would "promote harmony," and asked the house not to leave it to the "tender mercies of the commerce committee and that would mean it would be buried."

hour tonight had not regained consciousness.

While there were no eyewitnesses to the catastrophe, indications were that the automobile, traveling at a moderate rate of speed, straddled a rut on a sharp curve and hurtled over into the ditch before the driver could right the wheels.

Frederick's body was brought to his home here, while Baldwin was taken to a hospital.

Both men are well known in this section as two of the state's foremost orchardists.

Frederick is survived by four grown sons, Philip, Edward, Harmon and Donald.

DENIES BARING PLANNED TRIP WITH AFFINITY

White Plains, N. Y., May 2.—In planning a trip to Europe on July 7, Clarence O. Baring expected to be accompanied by his wife, who has accused him of trying to kill her with poison and disease germs, and not by another woman posing as Mrs. Baring, Charles E. Long, Baring's attorney, declared today. Mrs. Baring was reported yesterday to have said she knew nothing of plans for the trip.

District Attorney Rowland learned yesterday that Baring intended to sail for Antwerp on the Belgenland and that he had also engaged return passage on the Leviathan, due in New York August 5.

Long said his client obtained passports and used on them the same photographs of his wife and himself that they had used last summer when they went abroad. Mrs. Baring's photograph on a passport used by another woman would have been discovered immediately, Long asserted.

Long declared that Baring believed at the time he planned the trip that Mrs. Baring would give birth to a child in April last and felt she would be in need of a trip after that.

Mercer Lays Plan To Place Seminary
Of Baptists at Macon

Savannah, Ga., May 2.—Dr. Rufus Weaver, president of Mercer university, here attending the Georgia Educational convention, stated this afternoon that a proposition is before the general committee of the southern Baptist convention regarding the establishment in Macon of a theological seminary in connection with Mercer.

Dr. Weaver declared that the trustees placed the matter before the committee sometime ago and "it is probable and we hope that the seminary may be approved and recognized by the southern Baptist convention when it meets in Atlanta, May 14."

The president said too, that the general committee of the convention appeared favorable to establishing the seminary in Macon. If the seminary is established the convention will appropriate approximately $200,000 to be used for that purpose.

MAN NEAR DEATH OF SHOT WOUND;
TAKEN FOR ROBBER

Macon, Ga., May 2.—Andrew B. Nowell, young white man, is in a serious condition at a local hospital as the result of a bullet wound through his stomach inflicted early this morning by B. O. Partin, who fired on Nowell, thinking he was a burglar.

Partin is out under a light bond. Nowell is said to have attempted to gain entrance to an apartment house occupied by several families, shortly before 4 o'clock this morning. Partin claims he was awakened by noises and went to his door. When Nowell came toward him, he fired on him. The bullet lodged in Nowell's liver. Doctors removed it this morning and his condition is improved, it is said.

CUBAN UPRISING DEVELOPS POWER

Washington, May 2.—Issuance of an embargo on arms to Cuba by President Coolidge, following official advice from Havana that the military revolt is spreading, indicates a more serious condition in the island than was supposed.

Reports Friday from Havana state the uprising in Santa Clara has assumed serious proportions, and a rumor persists that General Velez has landed on the north coast of the island to take charge of the offensive against the Zayas government.

President Zayas already has asked an appropriation of $1,000,000 with which to combat the revolt, it is reported. Provisions of Coolidge's proclamation make it entirely possible for him to purchase military supplies from the United States, as the Oregon government did during the recent Mexican revolt.

War department officials, however, do not believe it will be necessary for Zayas to purchase further supplies of arms and ammunition since the Cuban government, shortly before the De la Huerta revolt in Mexico, purchased a large allotment from the United States.

The presence of the cruiser Cleveland in Cuban waters at first was taken to indicate the United States was ready to intervene should the occasion arise, but navy officials Friday said the vessel was in Havana on its way to New York from Central America.

Meanwhile Ambassador Crowder, at Havana will observe conditions and advise the United States as to the progress of the uprising. Should the revolt become too serious for Zayas to handle, the United States probably would intervene in accordance with the policy since Spain was ousted from the island.

New Year 'Round Atlanta-Knoxville Highway Is Seen

Probably that a new year 'round highway will link Atlanta and Knoxville in the near future is pointed out in a recent issue of the "Appalachian Journal," published in Knoxville.

This publication refers to the Georgia highway department project now well under way of an improved road from Atlanta north to Gainesville, Cleveland and Blairsville and on to the North Carolina line at a point near Murphy, N. C. It is shown that only a short cross over road is needed from this highway to Blue Ridge, which is almost on the Georgia-Tennessee line at Copperhill, Tenn. From the latter place it is stated, automobiles can travel all the year round by Tellico Plains, Madisonville and then either by Sweetwater or Maryville, into Knoxville.

This new route, when completed, will, it is said, reduce considerably the distance between the two cities, as compared to either the Asheville or Chattanooga routes and will provide a great timesaver to tourists en route to Florida or return. It also will provide a direct line north from Atlanta to Knoxville. Whittle Springs, Tate Spring and other east Tennessee summer resorts, as well as for traffic going north to Ohio, Michigan and the east.

In reference to maintenance of the road from the end of the present project under construction, to Blue Ridge, W. R. Neel, chief engineer of the Georgia highway department writes as follows, his letter being printed in the Knoxville publication:

"Referring to your letter of February 6, we have a state maintenance fund derived from the sale of automobile tags which we use for maintaining the entire system of state roads, and we can assure you that if the road between Blue Ridge and Cleveland and to the North Carolina line near Murphy and Blairsville is finished, we will keep it open to traffic at all times. We are now contemplating surface treating this road across the mountain with macadam. However, this is tentative, and we are not sure that this will be done this year.

"The highway between Athens, Ga., northwesterly to the Carolina line going towards Asheville and Murphy is under construction between Athens and Jefferson, but the remainder of the road is in passable shape."

WRIT TO PREVENT HANGINGS SOUGHT

New Orleans, May 2.—Another effort to block or stay the execution of five of the six men sentenced to hang May 9 at Amite for the murder of Dallas Calmes will be made tomorrow or Monday, when their attorneys will present a writ of habeas corpus in United States district court.

The move became known tonight when the five men, including Natale Deamora, who is being observed to determine his sanity, signed the petition prepared by George Gullotta and Girault Farrar, counsel for the condemned men.

Roy Leona, who confessed to the actual shooting of Calmes, was not included in the petition.

New Orleans, May 2.—Governor Parker apparently definitely sealed the fate of the six Italians, sentenced to hang at Amite May 9 for the murder of Dallas Calmes, when he issued today a statement in reply to a letter from Attorney General A. V. Cocco, explaining his reasons for voting for commutation for four of the men at the meeting of the board of pardons here Wednesday.

The learned attorney general knows the governor has no power to pardon or commute any sentence, but is under oath to enforce the decisions of the court and the verdicts as rendered," the governor's statement concluded.

The board of pardons voted unanimously to deny recommendation of commutation in the case of two of the men and took the same action by a vote of 2 to 1 as to the other four. Mr. Cocco, chairman of the board, cast the single dissenting vote.

Put On Special Guard. In addition to the regular death watch which was instituted at the Orleans parish prison here today where the prisoners are held, Captain Archie Rennyson, the superintendent, in response to numerous threats, ordered a patrol of three deputies, armed with sawed-off shotguns, to duty outside of the prison from sunset to sunrise. The prison is a stone's throw from the retail business section of Canal street.

Captain Rennyson, who received Wednesday an offer of $50,000 if he would permit the men to escape, had another letter today telling him if the offer was not accepted, he would live only a few days after the men were hanged, the writers declaring "we will get you sure." The first letter, containing the offer, also threatened to wreck the prison, on which the prisoners would be hanged, if they were not permitted to get away.

Governor Parker today was requested to order a company of state troops to Amite the day of the execution. It was understood there was no apprehension of mob violence, but it was suggested the soldiers would be needed for police duty to handle the large crowds of citizens of the parish, who would go to the parish seat out of curiosity or otherwise.

The identity of those who suggested troops was not disclosed by the governor. Sheriff Lem Bowden, of Tangipahoa parish, said he saw no necessity for troops, for he expected no trouble. Forty soldiers would be sworn in for the day, he said, to assist the town police force in preserving order, and the governor had assured him military aid would be available if the parish authorities found it necessary.

Sheriff Bowden has completed construction of a double gallows and the men will be hanged in pairs, in order to be determined by themselves, according to present plans. Under the law, executions in Louisiana are private, but there are no spectators can view the executions as they proceed within an enclosure, surrounded by board walls 30 feet in height.

Natale Deamora and Roy Leona, the latter the confessed actual slayer of Calmes, have become hysterical within the last few days and officials are observing them because of the possibility that they have lost their minds. Under the law, in such event, they would be committed to the insane asylum, to be executed if they ever regained their sanity.

Community Musical Services Will Open National Music Week

Opening National Music week, there will be a community musical service at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Wesley Memorial church, sponsored by the Woman's division Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, of New York, internationally known as the "voice" of music, will be the speaker. The Yarnab Chanters, under the direction of Frank Cundell, and the Emory Glee club, directed by Dr. M. H. Dewey, will sing groups of songs. The chorus of the Atlanta Music club, directed by Miss Lula Clark King, will sing "Night," the composition of Florence Gulson, of Atlanta.

The Atlanta Symphony Orchestra String Quartet, under direction of Enrico Leide, will play two numbers.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR SEES CONGRESS WORK

Washington, May 2.—Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, today for the first time saw the American legislative mill at work.

During a visit to the capitol, described as strictly personal, he had luncheon with Senator Lodge, Massachusetts, chairman of the foreign relations committee, and Representative Porter, Pennsylvania, chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs. Afterward several senators were introduced to the ambassador, when he accompanied Senator Lodge to the room just off the senate chamber.

Hundreds To Complete Today In Big "Keds" Field Events

Several hundred Atlanta boys and girls between the ages of eight and 18, inclusive, will compete for more than $800 in prizes in the "Keds" field day to be staged at Spiller's park this afternoon. The gun will send the first runners away in the dashes at 2 o'clock. The only qualification demanded of entrants, exclusive of age limitations, is that they wear "U. S. Keds," the brand of athletic footwear manufactured by the U. S. Rubber company.

The rubber company is cooperating with a number of Atlanta merchants in staging the meet, the first of its kind attempted in the south. Among the Atlanta firms backing the enterprise are the George W. Muse company, Daniel Brothers company, E. J. Perkerson and company, Fred S. Stewart company, McDonald and Strickling, Carlton Shoe and Clothing company, Davison-Paxon-Stokes, Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose, Star Shoe store, Johnson Dry Goods company, Marbut and Minor, and Giles Brothers, of West End.

Fourteen events, three for girls and eleven for boys, are scheduled, and handsome prizes are offered for each event. Awards include watches, fountain pens, athletic goods, tennis equipment, roller skates and Eastman kodaks. Prizes have been on display in the windows of the Muse Clothing company for the past week.

Mercer Debaters Defeat Alabama And Georgia Tech

Mercer university Friday night defeated Georgia Tech and University of Alabama teams in a three-cornered debate.

Mercer debaters, representing the negative side of the question, "Resolved, That the French Occupation of the Ruhr is Justifiable," won from Georgia Tech at the Tech Y. M. C. A. building and the latter affirmative team was given the decision over the University of Alabama at Macon. Mercer won both debates by a vote of 2 to 1.

John Staton and Irvin Goldman, both of Atlanta, represented Tech, while J. W. Cook, of Wrightsville, Ga., and C. W. Pope, of Tallapoosa, were Mercer's representatives. James L. Mayson presided at the debate held here, and the judges were M. E. Coleman, L. Z. Rosser and J. S. Hopkins.

Results of the third debate, in which the Tech negative team, composed of Albert Phipps, of St. Petersburg, Fla., and John Barrett, of Fort Smith, Ark., met the Alabama affirmative team at Tuscaloosa, could not be learned Friday night.

MODERNIST FIGHT LOOMS AT M. E. MEET

Springfield, Mass., May 2.—An unexpected discussion of fundamentalism and a resolution indorsing the world court occupied the attention of members of the Methodist Episcopal general conference in its session here Friday.

A bitter controversy over the question of the virgin birth was forestalled when sufficient strength was mustered among the modernist delegates to block a fundamentalist resolution. Dr. Harold P. Sloane, of the New Jersey delegation, making an impassioned plea for Methodism to proclaim allegiance of the denomination to its ancient doctrinal standards, deplored the fact that belief in the virgin birth and Christ as the Lord is being questioned in newspaper headlines.

"The Methodist church stands undivided for the principles and beliefs of common Christianity," he said, "and a positive, tremendous expression of faith will go far in helping the church at this juncture of its history."

However, a silent but strong opposition to Dr. Sloane's resolution made itself felt, resulting in deferred action on his plea.

Without dissent the 558 delegates, including those from foreign countries, approved the world court as proposed by the late President Harding, and voted that notice of their action should once be conveyed to President Coolidge.

The conference also adopted a resolution asking congress to extend the prohibition law to the Philippine Islands and voted to give the support of the church to the campaign for the establishment of prohibition in India.

COOLIDGE ENJOYS EVENING BREEZES ON FRONT PORCH

Washington, May 2.—The front porch of the White House in Washington, Mass., the home of President Coolidge, are regarded as useful as well as decorative adjuncts, and the president sees no reason for considering any differently the north porch, or front porch, of the white house.

Returning from a walk taken in the balmy spring air after his day's work, Mr. Coolidge is seen today sitting out on the north porch for a while. He directed a chair be brought out and a big arm style chair was placed on the porch. The president sat down, crossed his legs and remained there until time for dinner, or rather "supper" as he prefers to call it in the New England way.

White house attaches could not remember any president who had thus used the north porch, previous chief executives having generally retired on spring and summer evenings to the more secluded and awning-shaded south porch.

Victoria, British Columbia.—Official statistics issued by the minister of mines place the value of the mineral production of British Columbia for the year 1923 at $41,304,320. This is $5,145,477 greater than the monetary output during the year 1922, an increase of 17.5 per cent.

THE LAST CALL

This is the last day to register in Georgia in order to vote in the fall primary and in the next general election.

There is no duty of citizenship of greater importance than the exercise of the franchise.

It is that by and through which democratic institutions are maintained; and it is, conversely, an indifference and a disregard for that duty by and through which blocs and minorities gain control of government and rule in defiance of the unexpressed will of the majority.

It is of peculiar importance that the people of Georgia register. This state has suffered economically to almost an immeasurable extent by reason of the indifference of the people to their franchise privileges.

Minority government in Georgia has become the rule and not the exception, and however satisfactory or unsatisfactory such a situation may be, the very fact that such a condition does exist is evidence that we are drifting away from representative government, and the only other objective in the long run is governmental tyranny and despotism.

The fathers fought and won the battle of democracy over monarchy. The constitution and the declaration of independence set up first a government of, and for, and by, the people, and then guaranteed to each individual political and religious and personal liberty, in conformity with organic and statutory laws.

This system of government—"to make the world safe for democracy"—was the claim-act of the late World War, and it was to put an end to governmental manipulations, to autocracy, to secret cabals, to antagonisms to the will of the people, that the greatest of all wars was fought and won. This government had a conspicuous place in the winning of that war for democracy.

Democracy cannot be maintained except by systems of government that are indeed and in truth representative of the people.

Minority government strikes at the fundamentals of democracy and tears down where democracy builds.

These truths should so impress themselves upon the men and women of voting ages, who can by proper registration become qualified to vote in Georgia's September primary, that there shall be the largest registration, and the largest and most representative vote cast this fall, ever known in the history of the state.

THE DAWSON ADVERTISER.

Mrs. B. H. Howard, of Dawsonville, Ga., announces in the current issue of the Dawson County Advertiser, that she has acquired ownership of that well-known weekly newspaper which for years was owned and operated by her father, the late John B. Thomas, of Dawsonville, under whom she worked on the Advertiser. During the life of Mr. Thomas his daughter was his chief assistant. After his death the paper passed into other hands, the name being changed to "The Cosmopolitan."

In taking over the paper Mrs. Howard restores its original name and announces that extensive improvements will be made in the plant so as to give the people of Dawson county "a good, reliable, weekly newspaper whose real purpose will be to promote every interest of town, county and section."

Dawsonville is on the main highway from Atlanta to Dahlonega and Asheville and it is the center of one of the best sections in northeast Georgia.

The people of the county are to be congratulated in the possession of such a live newspaper owned and edited by a fellow townsman and it should have the undivided support of the people of the county, for a good newspaper is the strongest asset of any community.

OUTDOOR RECREATION.

There will be held in Washington, May 22-24 inclusive, a national conference on Outdoor Recreation, sponsored by the president, and conducted by an executive committee of cabinet officials of which Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, is executive chairman.

The membership of the conference, of which undoubtedly a permanent organization will be perfected, will be composed of delegates from all allied and interested organizations, such as camp and trail clubs, health, hygiene, park and country life councils and associations, and so on.

It is expected that several hundred representative men and women, from among civic and educational workers from all over the country, will be in attendance, and that a movement may be begun that will aid materially in the health and happiness of the people, the conservation of human energy, and the building of constructive good citizenship.

In general, some of the topics which will be discussed and upon which it is hoped conclusions may be reached and constructive suggestions formulated, are:

Encouragement of outdoor recreation as a federal function; constitutional or legal authority for federal participation; the bearing of outdoor recreation on mental, physical, social and moral development; outdoor recreation as an influence in child welfare; the wild life (game and fur-bearing animals, birds, fish and plants) resources of the United States; the scenic resources of the United States, and major possibilities of national cooperation in promotion of recreation.

Under the last named topic the following questions will be especially considered:

Formation of advisory councils on outdoor recreation; closer correlation of work and units of government organization; closer correlation of agencies other than federal, and their correlation with federal agencies; formulation of an educational program for outdoor recreation; promotion and coordination of game preservation; and survey and classification of recreational resources.

President Coolidge, in issuing the call for the conference and in stating its purposes, says, in a statement just released:

"This is not an effort to federalize recreation at the expense of state, municipal, local or private interest therein. Individual effort should at all times be encouraged. Many of these interests, however, though working generally towards the same end, do not attain the maximum results because there is no coordination.

"It will be the object of this conference, therefore, to assist in forming a national policy which will coordinate all these activities. The prime objective for which I feel we should strive is to endeavor to make available for the average American citizen, through the use of the use of, and to preserve our facilities for recreation for our children and our children's children."

The movement is one of peculiar appeal to all the people, and most especially to the south where the recreational opportunities are so great and varied; and in view of the outstanding work of the forestry commission in developing the recreational features of the government's forest reserves, and in further view of the interior department's determination to establish a national park in the southern mountains.

It is hoped that the southern states will be well represented at the conference and offer every cooperation possible with Colonel Roosevelt and his committee.

GOOD MARKET SIGNS.

There were two very important news developments during the week just closing, events that were of a very constructive nature as far as the stock market is concerned and also as to the economic condition of the country.

The first was the announcement of the extra dividend of one-half of one per cent, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend, by the steel corporation.

The other was the cutting of the discount rate by the Federal Reserve bank of New York.

The former showed that business conditions as a whole were not as bad as have been painted by some pessimists, nor does a declaration of the extra dividend portend any slump in business. Steel is the barometer of the stock market, and the conditions in this industry have a great deal to do with conditions in many other lines.

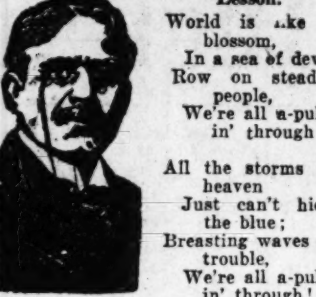

As to the cut in the discount rate, this shows that credit conditions are good, and that stable conditions exist in financial and business world, and can be expected to continue.

Such things restore confidence in the market, and this is just what the market needs at the present time.

The city tax collector is the busiest man in Atlanta just now. That always happens when the people "dig down."

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STANTON

The Pull-Through Lesson.
World is like a blossom.
In a sea of dew,
Row on steady people,
We're all a-pull-in through!

All the storms of heaven
Just can't hide the blue;
From the waves of trouble,
We're all a-pull-in through!

At the gates of glory,
When the heights we view,
Let this be the story:
"We've all pulled through!"

Wayside Philosophy.
Fortunes might be made, the time people lose in growing at the world.
We say that heaven is a place of rest, and yet we're all the time worry-in' the angels with our troubles.

What the Rain Said.
The long rain found us growlin'—
And passed the word around:
"Come up from the grounds,
People, are you down!
And once you're on the hilltop,
Stay in Halleluia Town!"

Brother Williams.
The man that gits there don't worry 'bout rain, an' he don't stop to consider what he's done till he don't do it; an' even then he don't look like half enough to him.

A Good Times Jingle.
The very birds are hummin'—
O'er the happy time a-comin'—
The world is singin' of it night an' day,
When we'll get the fullest measure
Of the happiness we treasure
When we'll dance our tribulations all away!

'Tis that which keeps us goin'—
When the hurricane is blowin',
And winter blights the blossoms o' the May;
For we hear the fiddle playin'—
Where the happy days are stayin',
And we'll dance our tribulations all away!

Instead of abusing the devil so much, it would be more healthy for you to take a recess and praise the Lord some.

A Weather Miracle.
"Mister Sunshine's comin'" they hollered round about;
"Tong come the Weather-Wind an' blowed his handle out!"
But the clouds were still as skerry when they glimpsed the light o' day.

An' they called to the Weather-Wind to blow 'em all away;
An' he blowed 'em to the west, an' he blowed 'em to the west,
An' here come Mister Sunshine to the folks he loved the best.

Proverbs on the Highway.
Don't wait for "Well Done," but keep the work going. It is its own reward.
It will be a mighty good thing for all of us if we feel just a little bit at home when we reach the Higher Place.

Comfort.
Comfort in a life's distress—
Never reach despair;
No such thing as a wilderness.
If the birds are singin' there.

Lonesome.
Once upon a time I prayed that I might be delivered from all my troubles, but when my prayer was answered I was man in the world: there was nobody to sympathize with me!

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

THE LOW COST OF FLIVVING.

Far from being relaxation, riding in an automobile is a strain upon endurance, no matter what the make or type of car. The owner driver particularly feels that strain whether he admits it or not. Let him submit to a blood pressure test at the end of a ride of any considerable distance, and the chances are that the pressure will be found elevated well above the normal.

Many a careful, law abiding driver speeds slowly to his doom, thanks to the low cost of flivving. The automobile takes you out in the air, gives you an appetite like a hired man. At the same time it gives you no exercise, robs you of the use of your arms, and the prim old maid would say, lower extremities, commonly known as legs. Under such conditions you are pretty sure to bite off more than you can metabolize, and the excess of nutrient stores up trouble for the future.

Women are growing stouter and less attractive every day. Men are growing older and less vigorous every day. Middle age is getting to be a serious adventure. The degenerations of senility, Bright's disease and heart disease—are increasing in freest well on the hardy American quency among mature adults. Prosperity is the reason for it. The average citizen is getting to be a more active citizen. We have not yet learned to harmonize our appetites with our metabolism. The automobile is shortening life.

The trouble is that the very people who need to have the equalizing, stabilizing influence of daily walking are the ones who afford cars. The automobile, working people, who might profit immeasurably from the open air life made possible by the automobile, can scarcely afford the time or gasoline, notwithstanding the low cost of the car. It is like baseball: The office or sedentary worker who attends a game as spectator, grows intensely excited and yells and mobs the umpire, and all that, is simply getting vicious exercise, vicious recreation; the players are getting the physical benefit of the game, but the spectator gets only the nerve-racking excitement. Men must play the game in order to obtain actual benefit from it.

The advent of the automobile in the average household ought to be regarded with regret, for it is certain to rob the family of no small degree of good health which has hitherto been insured by the use of legs. Auto intoxication, that great modern handicap, is powerfully opposed by the exercise of walking. Two miles of oxygen three times a day remains the peer of any prescription applicable to the universal ailment of auto intoxication. The degeneration of middle age—but never forget that the two miles must be taken on the hoof. Marriage exercise was all right in the old days of almanac and liver regulators. A ride in the car is merely a nervous strain, something to be looked upon as a more or less inevitable drawback about being alive today.

Just In Passing

BY JAMES A. HOLLOWAY

Two state-wide political conventions, of opposing major parties, were held in Atlanta within a week, both charged relatively with the same functions—the selection of delegates to the national conventions, adoption of resolutions, selections of the Georgia members of the two national committees and the adoption of party platforms, etc.

The first was the democratic state presidential convention, held in the Lyric theater on Wednesday, April 23, and the other was the republican state convention held in the city auditorium on Wednesday, April 30.

Both were supposed to be composed of precisely the same delegate strength, that is delegates from each county to the number of double the representation of the respective counties in the lower house of the assembly; and the alternates.

It is interesting and extremely significant to appraise and compare the actual proceedings of these two conventions, both as to the appointments of the delegates and as to the regularity and legality of procedure, and to draw an outstanding lesson therefrom that must at once impress itself upon every thoughtful, far-seeing democrat in Georgia.

As to the democratic convention the delegates and alternates were entirely appointed from every county by a secret cabal, sitting behind locked doors in Atlanta.

In this matter county autonomy was wholly disregarded; the rights of even the friends of the preferential nominee in the various counties were ignored, and the fundamental democratic principle of local self-government was trampled under foot with ruthless unconcern, and with the madening force of political despotism on the part of three men—intoxicated with power—and a handful of their confederates.

In the republican state convention the county delegates were chosen by county conventions, and subsequently ratified by districts. These delegates came to the convention with their credentials regularly and orderly and democratically issued, through the voice of their respective party strengths in the various counties.

In the democratic convention no call of counties was made to ascertain those represented or not represented; no roll call of delegates was made, this being abandoned by the cabalists after the call of three counties showed no delegates and only one alternate present, and no attempt was made to exclude from voting any but properly qualified delegates, or alternates credited in lieu of absent delegates. No lines were drawn between the accredited delegates and alternates, and visitors, onlookers, camp-followers, and even "supers"—packed in to fill the seats and swell the voting capacity for the manipulators.

In the republican convention admission cards were issued to delegates and alternates and newspaper men only, and no one not legally entitled to the floor of the convention was admitted under any pretense or circumstance. The call for a national party convention was read in full; also the regularly issued call for the state convention, together with the representation legally allowed each county. A roll call of delegates by counties was made in orderly procedure, and 396 out of a possible 412 delegates answered present as their names were thus called.

In the democratic convention the nominations of the delegates at large and the district delegates, as per an

The First Of May.

May-day has passed into history once again. In Moscow gigantic demonstrations were held in the Red Square and immense floral tributes were laid on the grave of Nikolai Lenin. While seventy military bands followed by half a million soldiers filed past Leon Trotsky, the war minister, 600 church chimes rang out with the notes of the "Communist Internationale." Factory whistles shrieked and yelled, and tens of thousands danced in the streets. It was a case of auto-intoxication. For the world program of revolution seems to be somewhat retarded. Germany was to have been led by this time and Hungary and Finland, according to Karl Radek. In the United States the day passed unnoticed. Still that country also on the state for big communist doings, according to the latest announcements of George Zinoviev.

In the democratic convention the New York delegation was promptly "instructed" by a rising vote, and without the voice of the people in primary and on protest and a call for the roll call of those qualified to vote such instructions, a vote of delegates, alternates, visitors, camp-followers, "supers"—anybody—voted down the call.

In the republican convention every vote was squarely put and results declared on a basis of the will of a thoroughly orderly and legally regular assemblage.

Thus in a nutshell, as sad as it falls upon those of old-time democratic faith, was the difference of the two conventions—the one a mass meeting, a mob, without regularity or order, though professing allegiance to the democracy of Jefferson and Jackson who fought and won the battle of state's rights and local self-government as fundamental of free and representative institutions; the other an orderly assemblage comporting to every rule of procedure demanded by the magna charta of individual and political liberty, though professing allegiance to the federalism of Hamilton.

What does this mean in Georgia—the Georgia of Robert Toombs and Benjamin Hill and Alexander Stephens, and later of Thomas E. Watson, whose voices and pens, through long and notable careers, were powerful and always stirring and always unyielding for the true democracy of Jefferson—for the rights of the people, for the autonomy of states in the great governmental fabric of the nation, and for the autonomy of counties in the governmental fabric of the commonwealth?

What would these great Georgians who are gone say if they were living today and could see and know the truth?

Would they not shudder with apprehension at the grave consequences of such a situation?

Must democrats of Georgia—in the heart of the democratic south—learn again the lessons of real democracy from a group of republicans?

The Constitution can only point to the facts with the alarm that any democrat, of the school of the fathers, must feel and observe.

The situation is serious. Georgia is a democratic state and must always remain so. It must remain so by tracing the faith that is deep in every true democratic heart and in putting a stop for once and for all to the sinister and manipulating influences that have recently robbed the great majority of the people of this commonwealth of their political birthrights.

Pacifism

And Christ.

Pacifists at the Northwestern university have signed a pledge not to take any part in war, not even for the defense of their country. "It's not the spirit of Christ," they say. They hope to conquer with love. Instead of ridiculing and vilifying these people, who are in all probability sincere, and who are opponents should sit down with them and "reason together." Of course war is not the spirit of Christ. Neither is secret diplomacy and intrigue, greed and imperialist plunder. And those are the cause and origin of wars. Once soldiers start marching, pillaging and burning, with all the accompanying evils, the dread of the terms of women and girls, in spirit of Christ avails little. How can you love and forgive when a human beast invades your home? To act bravely and tenderly under such circumstances requires supernatural powers. Christ had those powers, but we have not.

"Million-Dollar Mentalities" Is Last Subject.

With a final lecture on "Million Dollar Mentalities" at the Central Congregational church at 8 o'clock tonight, Mrs. Gertrude Steele Chambers, psycho-analyst, closes the series of nine free lectures she has been delivering in Atlanta.

A crowd that filled the church heard her lecture on "The Greatest Thing in the World" Friday night when she outlined the path to love and happiness. She reviewed the mental handicaps to happiness and urged her hearers to look upward with clean minds to the good things of life.

Many of the members of Mrs. Chambers' lecture audience have entered the classes she is to organize next week to teach psycho-analysis.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

New York, April 30.—A shuffling figure of the underworld with a dragging leg and a withered arm appears at police headquarters twice a week. He is explaining a past in such a way that even calloused criminal hunters are heartened.

A year ago he was one of the brood of Broadway jewelers whose little shops are "fences"—a hole in the wall for thieves' loot. He participated in a $350,000 jewel robbery. In that he received the plunder and hid it in his safe.

The keenest sleuths were on the chase but they found only blind alleys. The jeweler was going home one night. There was a thump at the base of the brain and he sagged to the sidewalk, the victim of a paralytic stroke.

While he was in the hospital an assistant surgeon stole the jewels. When the jeweler recovered sufficiently to discover his loss he made underground overtures to the thief. The thief offered him an exchange for what he called "peace of mind."

He was given a chance. Bit by bit he has made good. More than $200,000 worth of the various jewels have been returned. He exacted a promise that he should not be shadowed and the police have kept their word. They refuse to leave where he lives. They only say "uptown."

The underworld received word from the jeweler that the doctor had given him a short time to live—nine months at most. "I want to go out square," he wrote, "and I am going to clean up my last job. If those I have 'stood by' don't stand by me I won't stand by anybody who is going out with me."

The denizens knew him as a man of his word—one who would turn up when necessary. The jeweler had been broken up and distributed to various other "fences" but piece by piece it is being recovered and taken to headquarters.

Assuming that he would count at the rate of one a second, or 28,000 in eight hours, it would take 34,722 2/3 days, or working every day in the year, 95 years.

CHILD OF 3 MAY SAVE MOTHER FROM PRISON

Possibility that Mrs. Billy Roberts, 174 Rawson street, who, in tears, pleaded guilty in city criminal court Thursday to possessing liquor and was sentenced to serve eight months at the state farm, may yet be spared this sentence on account of her 3-year-old girl child, developed Friday when it was learned appeals had been made to the court to probate the sentence, thus permitting the young mother to remain with her child.

Mrs. Roberts, formerly a waitress in a downtown cafe, told Judge Andy Calhoun the liquor found in her apartment belonged to roomers. "I didn't believe the liquor was yours, but you are protecting the guilty parties, probably confirmed bootleggers, by taking the blame on yourself," Judge Calhoun said. "There is nothing for me to do but sentence you."

Judge To Support Couple Refused Help by Society

Refusal by the Family Welfare society of Atlanta, formerly the Association of Charities, to grant further support to Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bryant, aged couple of 46 Fortness street, resulted Friday in an announcement by Judge Garland M. Watkins, of the domestic relations court, that he would support the couple unless some other organization lent aid. Support was cut off from the Bryants, it was stated, because of Judge Watkins' refusal to take from them their three grandchildren at the request of the society.

Judge Watkins, declaring from the bench that his court had no authority to take children or grandchildren from their guardians except for sufficient legal cause, passed an order Friday returning the children to their grandparents' custody. The court had taken custody of the three, Minnie Bryant, 14, Antoinette Bryant, 11, and Willie Bryant, 9, pending investigation of the complaint of the society that they were under "inefficient and improper guardianship."

MORE TIME REQUIRED FOR ZIHLMAN PROBE

Washington, May 2.—The house committee investigating criminal charges against Representative Zihlman, republican, Maryland, announced today it might not be able to submit a report to the house "until some time next week."

The following statement was issued by the committee: "Proceedings of the committee have been somewhat delayed by causes beyond its control and it may not be able to make its report to the house accompanied by the printed testimony which it has taken until some time next week."

"Meanwhile the committee wishes to say that it will make no announcement at this time as to the evidence it has received nor any view which may be held by its individual members, its belief being that its duty is first to submit its report there with testimony to the house under whose resolution it is acting."

"It is only proper and fair for the committee to say that any newspaper statements relative to what the committee may or may not do are wholly unauthorized or without foundation, and particularly a statement which has recently appeared to the effect that the committee or any member thereof has directly or indirectly communicated with the white house on any phase of the investigation."

Marie Corelli Buried Humble Origin

London, May 2.—The secret of the birth of Marie Corelli, world famous woman novelist whose romantic love stories made her probably the most popular of women writers, has apparently been revealed.

Marie Corelli went to her grave as a figure of mystery, a woman with a veiled past whose very birth remained a secret.

Now, 70 years to the day after her birth, the publication of a baptismal certificate issued in a poor quarter of London, on May 15, 1854, seems to have shattered the atmosphere of mystery she guarded so carefully. It shows that Marie was the daughter of obscure London working folk.

Fantastic stories had been told of her, centering principally on a tale that her father had been Scotch and her mother Italian. A legend of color and fantasy had been built up about the character of the lone woman. With a smile, a shrug and polite innuendo, this mystery woman—coming from nowhere—fostered the stories.

It appears that the novelist did so in order to conceal her humble origin. The baptismal certificate is that of Caroline Cody, born on May 1, 1854. The parents of the child were Harriet and Thomas Cody, the latter a laborer.

Many friends of Marie Corelli have asserted that her real name was Cody. Now the London Daily News definitely declares that the certificate is that of the girl who later took the name of Corelli, and made it famous.

Those who were in close touch with the novelist say that her own account of her parents as being "Scotch and Italian" was purely mythical, and part of her life-long romanticizing.

They say that even in childhood she was a poseur and romanticist, and adopted the name of "Marie Corelli" to foster the story of a mysterious Italian origin.

One of the most picturesque of the yarns told about her was that she was left on the door step of Charles Mackay, commonly supposed to have been her step-father, during a snow-storm sixty years ago. Old rustics, boasting a memory that goes back 85 years, recall having heard the story, but no one remembers hearing anything about the incident at the time it was supposed to have happened.

Friends of her family say that 56 years ago Marie was a 15-year-old school girl, and was called "Minnie." They say that she was not Mackay's step-daughter, but an adopted child. On this basis, she would have been a lusty ten-year-old infant on the night of the snow-storm in which she was supposed to have appeared.

Christian Education Making Big Strides

Nashville, Tenn., May 2.—Substantial progress in Christian education in the way of erection of new buildings, paying off old debts and adding to endowments was reported today to the college of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church by Dr. H. H. Sherman, associate secretary of the board of education. Of the $18,000,000 subscribed three years ago, $4,500,000 has been collected. Dr. Sherman reported. Moreover, an additional $5,000,000 has been raised in new money in special college campaigns.

Dr. Sherman asked that the period from November 1, 1924, to April 1, 1925, be used for a church-wide effort in behalf of Christian education.

CRACKERS JUMP ON PELICANS FOR 11 TO 3 VICTORY

Benny Karr Is Effective While Teammates Pound on Four New Orleans Pitchers

New Orleans, La., May 2.—(Special.)—Atlanta won this afternoon's track meet at the Hennebry park, 11 to 3, but there is nothing startling in that. How Atlanta could have avoided it is a problem for a whole committee of alienists to discuss, so it has no place here.

At first, Benny Karr, who pitched for the Crackers, and the whole Crack team acted as if they were not in it. How Atlanta could have avoided it is a problem for a whole committee of alienists to discuss, so it has no place here.

First baseman Muller had seen Tucker's first blow—a two bagger to right—go over his head and when "Tarzan" poked a terrific low liner right at him in the fourth, Muller showed his teeth. The teeth lost the decision.

Tucker's liner hit the ground directly in front of Muller and crashed him in the mouth. He was knocked down and out, but soon revived and, minus several teeth, left the game, Burrus taking his place at the doorway.

McCauley, of the Crackers, shared with Tucker the hitting honors of the afternoon. McCauley also was fined a young fortune for being about a called strike. Red Niehoff nearly got himself put out of the game by missing a home run.

Old Ewoldt was fined for squawking at the decision of Umpire Figg in the sixth when Ewoldt was out at second, and on top of that Ewoldt was told to remove himself from the premises because he expressed disapproval of the fine.

Then Caldera's arm gave out on him in the seventh. He had to leave the game after safe hits by Brock and Zoellers and a base on balls had filled the paths and another base on balls had forced a man in. Only one man was out at the time.

Karr had been getting better and better as the game went on and he started out all "a la Coupe" in the seventh by striking out Jackson. Parker was safe on Krehmeyer's boot of his grounder and Withrow, hitting for Whitaker, whiffed the air. Bogart walked and Schick singled to left. Parker being held at third. That made Karr mad and the sacks filled, he struck out Henry.

Dent took Bill Whitaker's place on the hill. Four straight balls sent Krehmeyer, first up, to first base, and Brock singled to left field. Karr laid down a bunt toward third and it went

SARAZEN IS LOSER AT JAMAICA

New York, May 2.—Another champion horse of 1923 was compelled to inhale the dust when Sarazen, the three-year-old gelding which won ten races and was not once defeated as a two-year-old last season lost the Jamaica track Friday. Sarazen was beaten by a length and a half by Braceland, a three-year-old colt owned by the Rancocas or Sinclear, farmed in Braceland is a half-brother of the great Man o' War, as Fair Play sired them both.

Sarazen, owned by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, had shown great flashes of speed in his training sprints and was the favorite at 1 to 3. He was not in front after the first furlong pole. His price in the Kentucky derby betting probably will be affected by his showing. On the other hand, St. James, another great two-year-old of the 1923 season, probably will be a short price horse in the derby because of his victory over Zev, last year's three-year-old champion, in Tuesday's Paumonok handicap.

JOHNNY DUNDEE READY TO DEFEND HIS TITLE

New York, May 2.—Johnny Dundee, world's featherweight king, has agreed to place his throne within the reach of any contender the state athletic commission selects. This agreement was reached after an afternoon conference between Charles Johnston, Dundee's manager, and the state commission.

Stribling-O'Dowd Fight Next on Local Program

With the Flowers-Robinson fight now a matter of history, Atlanta's sporting fraternity is making ready to welcome Young Stribling, when he meets Dan O'Dowd, of Boston, in a 12-round bout at the auditorium May 20.

Stribling, the pride of the southland and the boy wonder of the pugilistic world, will return to his native state around May 10 to complete training for the bout.

Other details of the fight, such as the selection of the referee, will be announced after the meeting of the commission.

MERCER DEFEATS WOFFORD NINE BY SCORE OF 2 TO 0

BY LEONARD W. WILLIAMS. Macon, Ga., May 2.—(Special.)—A wee Wofford pitcher came here today and but for a rally of the Mercer ball-pelting squad after the Central City fans had almost despaired of seeing the Baptists snatch the bacon, the South Carolina nine would have captured the first of a two-day affair here.

As matters finally stand, however, Mercer has attached its 13th victory to the string of 17 of the season's games. The ninth round wound up with a 2 to 0 win for the Orange and Black aggregation.

Sawin, Mercer's slinger, was not deluged by any means, but the comeback on Mercer's part was staged only after several innings of uneventful batting had left a doleful impression.

In the latter rounds, the Baptist moundman played close ball, but Mercer's third baseman, who threw wild to first.

The first of Mercer's tallies came when "Rusty" Lawrence, second baseman, slammed a single to the center of the field.

Lawrence's single was followed by a double by Poore and brought home by a double from the bat of Reese. The second

VICENTINI IS GIVEN VERDICT

New York, May 2.—Louis Vicentini, Chilean lightweight, was given a judges' verdict over Pal Moran, of New Orleans, in a slow 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

The Chilean was the aggressor from the start, but Moran's body attack piled up a large total of points, according to newspapermen at the ringside, and the decision went to the referee as unpopular one.

Moran, always a hard hitter, seemed to be holding back for what was thought to be a knockout punch, but the Chilean kept his jaw well covered at the expense of his body. It was in the Chilean's mid-section that Moran concentrated his attack and the conclusion of the fight saw Vicentini's body a mass of glove blotches.

Vicentini kept on top of the New Orleans fighter at start and forced him to keep well covered, but the Chilean failed to land any particularly telling blows.

Moran appeared to be feeling out his opponent and the aggressor settled back to wait until he opened up on the Chilean. But Moran kept in his shell with his aggressiveness and only once or twice during the course of the bout did he exhibit any aggressive

MANY STARS ENTERED IN MEET

Montgomery, Ala., May 2.—Football followers will see many of their grid favorites in action here May 9 and 10. Instead of molesters, however, the pigskin artists will be checked out in track regulars. Practically every team entered boasts of one or more football luminaries, and a great collection of grid stars will appear when the Southern Conference track and field meet gets under way at Crampton bowl.

Probably chief among the lot is Doug Wycoff, all-southern fullback of Georgia Tech. Doug puts a wicked shot and is regarded by the critics as having an excellent chance to lead the field here.

Other details of the meet, such as the selection of the referee, will be announced after the meeting of the commission.

Amateurs Play Schedule Today

BY M. D. GLEASON. The amateur and semi-pro ball teams of Atlanta and vicinity will play their third round in five of the leagues today. The city league will get its first games under way and every available ball ground in the city will be the scene of a game.

In addition to the clubs in the several leagues there are many independent teams in and around Atlanta which will cross bats for the first time today.

The schedule in six leagues for today brings several good teams together for the first time this year and some good games are assured.

In the city league the Georgia and West Point teams will play the East Point club at the West Point grounds.

The Georgia Railway club, winners of the city championship for the past three years, will play the Pace Setters on the northwest diamond at Piedmont park at 4 o'clock.

Both Teams Rally in 8th And Get Four Runs Each; Petrels Outhit Bulldogs

BY DELACEY ALLEN. Atlanta, Ga., May 2.—(Special.)—The old jinx, which has pursued Oglethorpe so far and which has allowed it to tie Georgia twice and threaten it innumerable times without ever downing the Bulldogs in any athletic contest, was still in existence today and so a game which was apparently won was lost by the score of 7 to 6.

The Petrels came to bat in the half of the eighth with the Bulldogs leading them by only one run, the score being 3 to 2. Patridge christened the inning with a scorching single to center and the Oglethorpe contingent, which had been fighting valiantly throughout the entire game, seemingly went wild. Maurer then sacrificed Patridge to second. Bryant hit a short fly over second and both runners were safe.

Big Clay Parish, Oglethorpe's home-run king, then came to bat with the tying run on third and the winning run on first, and he had not hit safely in his previous times at bat, but Sale walked him to get to Morris, and thereby a hero was created even though it were but temporarily, for with the count 2 and 2 on him, Morris stepped into one of Sale's slow curves and slammed out a home run to the left field fence, scoring three runners and himself, thus making the score 6 to 5 in favor of the Petrels, with only two innings to go.

It looked as though the old jinx were broken, but the Bulldogs refused to give up. Fred Sale came in and slashed out a double to center field. Middlebrooks, who had already hit safe two previous times at bat, grounded out Patridge to Lindsay.

Watson hit a slow one to the pitcher and was safe on his error, to be followed by Richardson, who hit to the same place and was safe on the first baseman's error. In the meantime Sale had scored from third, making the score 6 to 4. Pop Ramsey, with his big bat, came stroling to the plate and putting Richardson there in his place. Allen fled out to right field and on the throw in, getting under Bryant at the plate, Richardson scored, Ramsey going to third. The score was tied 6 and 6.

Scrampy Moore then hit a hard one to short and beat it out when it was fumbled, Ramsey coming in from third for the winning run of the game. Oglethorpe was then easily reeled in their half of the ninth and Georgia's record was secure for one more day at least.

The hitting of Middlebrooks and Ramsey featured the day for the Bulldogs. The former led off safely with a clean single in the first and third innings, scoring both times. Big Pop Ramsey only hit safely three out of four times at the bat, each time with runners on bases who scored on his hits and his last clean single, a double with the count three and two on him, in reality saved the day for the Bulldogs.

The work of Maurer, who stole home in the first inning, and that of Morris with his home run was the outstanding event of the afternoon for the Petrels. Oglethorpe has a real baseball team, as her record of 12 straight wins will show. The two teams will play the final game tomorrow with Peace probably pitching for the Atlantics and Pantone or Chambers for the locals.

And oh! how delightfully they are embroidered—the design carried out sometimes on bodice and skirt, as well. Every color imaginable!—Pongees are in those youthful straightline effects, exploiting patchwork, embroidery and drawn-work. They're all-silk. Imagine how they will fly at $3.95.

Northcutt Ends 14 Years' State Service Today

James A. Northcutt, for the past 14 years chief clerk in the office of the state department of education, has resigned his position, effective Saturday, and accepted a position with the D. C. Heath company, book publishers.

Mr. Northcutt has been one of the most popular men in the capital throughout his long service to the state. He was appointed by Dr. M. L. Brittain in 1910, following seven years of service, also under Dr. Brittain, as principal of the Battle Hill school of Fulton county. He has held his position under the administration of three state school superintendents and, as chief clerk and statistician, has compiled 13 annual reports for the department. He has apportioned and sent out to the county and city school systems of the state over $47,000,000. He is a graduate of Mercer university of the class of 1903.

Mr. Northcutt's co-workers in the department, learning that he was severing his connection with them, prepared the following tribute to him as an expression of their appreciation of his unflinching kindness and efficient cooperation in all their work:

Few men have served the state longer, and none have served it more faithfully and efficiently than James A. Northcutt. A genuine gentleman, true and faithful in all of his relationships, conscientious in his duty and his friends, a most attractive personality and lovable character, he is in truth a rare man. To an exceptional degree he performed every task thoroughly well, whether it was the addressing of thousands of envelopes to school superintendents and teachers, or the apportioning of the millions of school funds proportionately to the hundreds of county and city systems. The quality and accuracy of his work was unquestioned by an, and its quantity was limited only by human possibilities. No worker in the state capital was more indispensable, and every one around the building regrets to see him go. Particularly is this true of his fellow-workers in the department of education, to whom he endeared himself so greatly. His friendly acts and attitude will be greatly missed by them and by those who had occasional business at the department. The warm inspiration of such a character will be missed, but its influence will abide.

Years ago the totem pole represented a highly developed and perfect art of the Alaskan Indians. Now they are frequently cut up for sidewalk material or used as firewood.

Mrs. W. S. Witham Gives Luncheon For Mrs. Dana

A lovely social event of Friday was the luncheon at which Mrs. William S. Witham was hostess at her home on Peachtree road, in honor of Mrs. Charles Dana, of New York, who is the jeted guest of her sister, Mrs. Hunter Perry.

The reception rooms of the handsome home were adorned with dogwood, weigela and spirea cut from the gardens of the hostess. Luncheon was served from a beautifully appointed lace covered table. Placed at intervals were silver bowls filled with pink tulips, yellow snapdragons and roses. Silver candlesticks holding pink tapers alternated with silver composites of pink mints and bonbons.

Mrs. Witham was assisted by her two daughters, Mrs. R. T. Dorsey and Mrs. Stuart Witham.

Mrs. Witham wore a model of black satin.

Mrs. Dana's gown was brown georgette crepe, with which she wore a close fitting brown hat.

Mrs. Perry wore black georgette crepe.

Girl Scouts Hold Annual Convention In Chicago

Several hundred delegates representing nearly every state in the union, gathered together in Chicago for the national convention of Girl Scouts held the past week.

Two thousands Girl Scouts participated with a great outdoor rally.

Mayor Dever addressed the delegates and praised the movement.

The Girl Scouts had its origin in Savannah, Ga., in March of 1912, when Mrs. Juliette Low founded Girl Guides. They were then a mere handful. In 1915, the growth of the movement warranted its national headquarters established in Washington, D. C. The name changed to Girl Scouts, Inc. In 1918 the headquarters moved to New York and are now located at 189 Lexington avenue.

From a mere handful there are now 100,000 Girl Scouts in the United States alone and nearly half a million in Italy, France, Belgium, Switzerland, Poland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Portugal, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Brazil, Argentina, Japan, China, and Siberia, India, parts of Africa, as well as from all parts of the British empire and Hawaii.

Scouting is nonsectarian and is open to all races and nationalities. The object of the organization is to give girls a natural, wholesome pleasure, those of the organization and body which will make them useful, responsible women ready and willing to take a definite part in the home, civic and national affairs of their country. Scouting teaches through doing.

The governing body of the Girl Scouts is the national council, composed of representatives from local councils and of other members elected by the national council. National headquarters is maintained to carry out the policies of the national council.

A local council may be organized in any community. This is a body of men and women representing the schools, churches, social and civic organizations, playgrounds, newspapers, and such bodies as the chamber of commerce and Rotary clubs. This council is organized for the purpose of promoting and supervising the welfare of scouting in the district.

The unit of organization is the patrol of eight members each. One or more patrols form a troop and they are grouped whenever possible according to age and congeniality. Each patrol has a leader and a corporal and each troop a captain. The captain may choose lieutenants to assist her. It is advisable that a troop of two patrols have a lieutenant and that for every additional two patrols another lieutenant be secured. Each troop selects for its name a flower, tree, shrub or bird. The members wear the emblem over the left pocket of their uniforms. Troops may be formed in connection with church, school, playground, settlement or other institution or organization. Unattached troops are also successful. Troop meetings are held weekly with the program fairly divided between recreation and education.

Any girl from 11 to 18 years of age, who is willing to subscribe to the promise and laws of the organization, may become a scout by passing the tenderfoot test. She should either join a troop which is already formed or should get together a group of girls to form a new troop.

The first step in organizing a troop of Girl Scouts is to secure a suitable young woman as captain, who must go through the training course and must be 21 years of age or over.

Girl Scouts are divided into three grades: Tenderfoot, second class, and first class. Admission to each grade is determined by a test in the required lines of work; that is, the girl must actually do the things which she has learned.

SUFFERED SINCE YOUNG GIRL

Words Failed to Express Benefit Received from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Texas. — "Words can not express how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.

Every month I would have cramps and headaches, and I felt like I was freezing to death. I suffered in this way from the time I was a young girl, and all the doctors said was 'operation.' For months I had a tired, sleepy feeling all day, and when night would come I would be so nervous I couldn't stay in bed. Our druggist recommended the Vegetable Compound to my husband, and he bought four bottles. I have taken every one and I think I have a right to praise your medicine." — Mrs. J. B. HOLLEMAN, 2214 E. Marshall St., Greenville, Texas.

For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been used by women from girlhood through middle age.

It is a dependable medicine for troubles common to women. Such symptoms as Mrs. Holleman had are relieved by correcting the cause of the trouble. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Clean-Up Reports Made by 50,000 School Children

Headquarters of the Atlanta Clean-up, Paint-up, Keep-up campaign will remain open until judges have reviewed more than 50,000 reports of school children entered in the prize contest, although the clean-up work is to be turned over by the central organization to individual efforts of 60 civic clubs which have been cooperating in the drive, Fred J. Coolidge, Jr., secretary of the general committee, announced Friday.

School children's questionnaires should be carried or mailed to "Clean-up Headquarters, 635 Chamber of Commerce building," before 6 o'clock today, Mr. Coolidge stated. Judges will begin assembling them Monday morning. At least a week will be required to determine school and classroom winners.

Prizes are to be awarded for the best work done in cleaning schools, homes and neighborhoods, each classroom and each school to be judged with allowance given for number of pupils.

Mr. Coolidge said Friday that the school children's work had been one of the brightest phases of the drive. He stated that the clean-up committee was grateful for the cooperation of the city streets and sanitary departments, housewives of the city, and all organizations which supported the campaign.

The general advisory committee is to meet again May 15 to exchange reports on progress made toward keeping the campaign alive as part of the civic work of each cooperating club and society.

SUNSHINE, WARMER WEATHER IS SEEN FOR REST OF WEEK

Continued bright, sunny weather, with a steadily rising temperature, is the probability for Atlanta over the week-end, according to C. F. Von Herrmann, in charge of the local office of the U. S. weather bureau. Friday's temperatures were a little below normal for the season of the year, ranging from 56 in the morning to close to 70 during the afternoon.

Subnormal temperatures are universal over the country, however, with fine clear weather accompanying them. A moderate area of low pressure over Minnesota gives the promise of somewhat warmer weather for this section in the next few days.

GEORGIA DELEGATION MAY GO BY STEAMER

It is probable that when Georgia's delegates leave for the national democratic convention, to be held in New York beginning June 24, they will travel in one party by steamer from Savannah.

This plan, according to the expressed wishes of a number of the leaders of the delegation, is not yet definitely settled, but has met so far with no opposition and it is thought probable it will be carried out. If so, the arrangements will call for the entire delegation to assemble in Savannah and leave from there on a steamer sailing June 19, and reaching New York on the morning of June 22.

To stay at Pennsylvania. Reservations for the delegation have been made at the Pennsylvania, the world's largest hotel, located conveniently to Madison Square Garden, where the convention will be held. These arrangements for the New York accommodation of the Georgia party were made by Clark Howell, democratic national committeeman for Georgia, and were announced by him in a letter sent Friday to the 56 members of the delegation. In this letter Mr. Howell stresses the importance of each delegate immediately communicating with F. W. Bergman, manager of the Pennsylvania hotel, as to what reservations will be needed.

Arrangements have also been made for the use of a parlor of the hotel, for conference purposes by the delegation.

The letter from Mr. Howell was as follows:

Mr. Howell's Letter.

"To members of the state delegation to the New York convention: Pursuant to the usual custom whereby national committeemen are expected to reserve in advance accommodations for their respective state delegations at the place of the meeting of the national democratic convention, I am advising you, as a member of the delegation from this state, that several weeks ago I reserved quarters for the Georgia delegation at the Pennsylvania hotel, New York, which is only a few blocks from the convention hall.

"There will be no increase in room charges over the usual rate. Members of the delegation are not obligated to stay at this hotel, but those who desire to take advantage of the accommodations arranged for should communicate at once with the manager of the hotel, Mr. F. W. Bergman, notifying him just what reservations are wanted.

"I have arranged with the Pennsylvania hotel to place a meeting room at the disposal of the Georgia delegation without extra charge. As there will be a heavy demand for rooms in New York at this time, it is important that those who wish to be assured of satisfactory accommodations should make their reservation in ample time in advance.

"By communicating direct with Mr. Bergman, explaining that you are a member of the Georgia delegation, and that you wish to make reservation in the allotment of rooms being held for this state, you will be protected. He will give you any information requested as to rates, etc.

"If you should not wish to make reservations at the Pennsylvania hotel it will not be necessary for you to communicate with him.

"I would suggest that if you wish to stop at this hotel you communicate at once with Manager Bergman. "CLARK HOWELL, "Member National Committee for Georgia. "Atlanta, Ga., May 1, 1924."

GROVER BELL COLLECTS DELINQUENT AUTO TAX

The state revenue department Friday placed one of its representatives in the automobile department of the secretary of state's office to collect the 20 per cent penalty levied under the law on delinquent automobile license tag purchasers. This penalty went into effect Friday.

Commissioner of Revenue John M. Vanders has asked the attorney general for a ruling on his right, under the law, to place his men in the office of the secretary of state, not only to collect the penalty from all cash purchasers of tags, but also to examine mail order applications and to arrange to collect the penalty from this source.

It is understood that as soon as this opinion is received every application for an auto license tag will be examined to see if it is delinquent or not. If it is, the applicant will be notified that his application has been held up until he sends the additional 20 per cent penalty to the office of the commissioner of revenues. Upon receipt of this penalty the application will be released and tag forwarded in due course of time from the secretary of state's office.

Grover Bell, deputy revenue commissioner, was on duty at the automobile license department Friday collecting the 20 per cent penalty from all tag purchasers. In cases where the applicant for the license tag has just purchased a car, or if he has kept it in the garage all year and has not driven it at all, he is not delinquent and will not be required to pay the penalty.

Japanese Seeking To Make Governor Walker Tea Hound

Officials of the Formosan government of Japan are trying to make the governor of Georgia a tea addict. The insidious oolong habit will be, if they can effect it, fastened upon the chief executive and they will undoubtedly chortle in oriental glee if they receive the information that he has become a hardened fiend of the teacup. For they have stooped to bribery to bring about this result. The bribe? A package of imported oolong of course.

The governor recently received a letter from H. Tabusa, described on his own letterhead as "Resident Commissioner of Camphor Department, Formosan Government of Japan." His address: 65 Broadway, New York City. Shortly following the letter came the package of oolong. The letter read as follows: "My dear Sir:

"The government of Formosa, Japan, has a most important industry of raising oolong tea, which enjoys importation into the United States. My government has directed me to send you a package of oolong tea with the heartfelt wish that the tea be known to such a distinguished personage as yourself. This has gone forward by parcel post. I have the honor to remain, "Most sincerely yours, "H. TABUSA."

The governor couldn't give any official information respecting the quality of the tea, but other capitol officials suggested the foreign invasion be answered by the shipping of samples of that famous beverage of the north Georgia mountains, which the state government most "assiduously discontemners."

DASH FOR LIBERTY ENDS IN CAPTURE OF TWO PRISONERS

Garland Gignilliat and Jim Bratchett are still inmates of Fulton county jail despite a daring break for liberty while they were being returned to the jail from the courthouse.

Gignilliat and Bratchett are held in connection with the theft of an automobile. When the two men, handcuffed together, had reached Butler street, in East Hunter street, in company with other prisoners, they made a sudden dash to the right, running up Fraser street instead of turning to the left towards the jail. Two court bailiffs gave chase, which ended several blocks up Fraser street, where the prisoners were found hiding under a negro house.

CROSS SECTION OF HISTORIC ELM SENT TO GEORGIA

A cross section of the trunk of the elm tree under which George Washington took command of the American army on July 3, 1775, has been sent to the state of Georgia by the city of Cambridge, Mass. The tree died recently, making it necessary to cut it down, and Cambridge decided that the best disposition to make of its historic wood was to present a section to each state in the union.

The Georgia block has a small bronze tablet on one side, bearing an inscription telling what it is and the date of the presentation. It was accompanied by a letter to the governor from the Cambridge park commission. The block is now on display in executive offices at the state capitol.

Washington, May 2.—William M. Butler, republican national committee man for Massachusetts and designated by President Coolidge to be next chairman of the republican national committee, has announced he will not be a candidate for the senatorial nomination in Massachusetts. His support probably will be thrown to Governor Channing Cox.

In a statement issued here, Butler said he is interested in the success of Calvin Coolidge more than anything else.

PERJURY COMMON IN LIQUOR CASES, DECLARES JUDGE

"We are further away from old-time honesty than the difference between written contracts and 'word bonds,'" according to Judge (Judge) Persons, of Forsyth, presiding in an extra division of Fulton superior court this week.

Judge Persons took up a number of liquor cases Friday. After he heard the statement of Mattie Whittaker, negro woman, who pleaded guilty to possessing seven gallons of booze and was fined $250, he remarked that people of every class can be counted on to tell the truth about most things, but not about liquor.

"False swearing on the witness stand is common today if the case is about liquor," Judge Persons said. "Men just won't tell the truth on persons accused of dealing in it. Men of good reputations just get on the witness stand and lie straight out about liquor. Men and women, too, seem willing to die and go to hell before they will swear to what they know to be the truth in regard to a bootlegger."

STORM DEATH LIST IS DROPPED TO 106

With the number of dead definitely placed at 106, reconstruction and relief measures rapidly were being put into effect late Friday in portions of seven southeastern states which were laid waste Tuesday and Wednesday by windstorms of unparalleled intensity.

Not until the outcome of injuries sustained by all the casualties is established will the final death toll be known, but it was believed today that all fatalities in the stricken areas, which have been reported in the devastated regions, communication was not restored until late Thursday.

Damage Heavy. The injured, of whom many probably will not recover, number more than 600 from best estimates available, while those rendered homeless in the disaster are counted by the scores. Preliminary estimates of $10,000,000 damage to property made yesterday when complete reports are compiled.

The number of known dead was reduced somewhat last night, when it definitely was learned that six deaths erroneously had been reported in South Carolina, but the mortality count was swelled again with word of additional fatalities in Georgia, North Carolina and Virginia.

Red Cross Active. Early Friday the known dead was divided as follows: Georgia, 14; Alabama, 11; North Carolina, 5; Virginia, 1; Louisiana, 1; Arkansas, 1.

Relief agencies in all localities, supervised by the American Red Cross, were operating at top speed Friday to provide shelter and food for the homeless, to provide medical aid, to provide temporary hospitals and food dispensaries are caring for hundreds while measures are being taken to provide more permanent aid.

SOUTH CAROLINA BEGINS RECONSTRUCTION WORK

Columbia, S. C., May 2.—Their dead buried, injured cared for in hospitals and the needy provided for in concentration camps directed by American Red Cross relief workers, citizens of South Carolina today girded themselves to the task of reconstruction after the series of twisting wind storms which swept the state Wednesday.

By executive proclamation today Governor Thomas G. McLeod called upon the public to aid the sufferers from the tornadoes which killed 73 persons, maimed scores, less seriously injured hundreds, wrecked the homes of thousands, and destroyed property with losses which may reach two or more millions.

Appeal For Funds. Realizing the immensity of the task, the executive urged that contributions be made "freely and liberally" as "thousands of dollars will likely be needed to carry forward the work of relief." While the two daily newspapers in Columbia were designated by him to receive contributions, the governor added that the central relief committee would also receive funds.

The general fund, he said, will be disbursed by the central Red Cross committee. No expense will be attached to the administration of the relief fund, it was added.

Atlanta Rushes Aid. Food and clothing were the principal needs, according to a statement made at headquarters of the central state relief committee. It was pointed out that the need for medical supplies is not so pressing in the scattered districts, most of the injured having been carried to hospitals.

A message from Red Cross headquarters for the southeastern states, located at Atlanta reported that tents were being rushed to South Carolina and should reach the stricken communities before midnight. Of the several hundred tents expected, 100 were consigned to the state of Georgia, which has already been partially supplied; 25 to Batesburg and 20 to Bishopville, while additional tents will be distributed to scattered sections.

NATIONAL RED CROSS ASSISTS STRICKEN ZONES

Washington, May 2.—National funds of the American Red Cross were made available today for continuation of the extensive relief operations rendered by Red Cross chapters in the south's tornado belt. One of the most pressing needs of the homeless is shelter. Several hundred tents purchased by the Red Cross are being set up and equipped for immediate occupancy. Ample Red Cross supplies are on hand to meet the needs of the homeless.

A telegram received this afternoon from Joseph C. Logan, manager of the southern division, states that local authorities in stricken regions have placed the entire relief situation in the hands of the Red Cross. The Red Cross disaster mobile unit which left Washington yesterday arrived at Columbia, S. C., this morning and immediately began relief operations.

FURTHER STEPS TAKEN TO CURB RUM RUNNING

Washington, May 2.—Treasury officials took further steps today in developing the program to curb rum running. Conferences by all units of the treasury engaged in prohibition enforcement brought about a closer cooperation between the prohibition forces under Commissioner Haynes, the coast guard and the customs service, and provided for a "central control" of coast guard work in its efforts to stop the landing of contraband on American soil.

Commander Harry G. Hamlet, a long-time coast guard officer, was selected to maintain the general headquarters of the coast guard's dry navy and has left for Philadelphia to take charge of the reconditioning of the seven destroyers turned over by the navy department. He will direct the entire dry force operating against rum runners along the Atlantic seaboard.

Simultaneously, the three arms of the enforcement service reached an agreement on jurisdiction, under which the coast guard hereafter will seek to protect all coast lines on deep water, and the prohibition and customs agents will be responsible for smuggling through small waterways and on land. The arrangement is expected to result in a material tightening of the lines, and when the coast guard has obtained the full quota of new craft planned under the reconditioning program, the coast guard's treasury officials believe much will have been accomplished toward better enforcement.

Wesson Oil and an egg make mayonnaise

Wesson Oil and a fresh egg—beaten together and seasoned to taste—make the most delicious mayonnaise you ever put in your mouth.

Mayonnaise is nothing but oil and egg properly beaten together and seasoned. It is as simple and easy as that.

If the egg is fresh and the oil Wesson Oil, you are sure of a pure, delicious mayonnaise in almost no time and at a trifling cost.

The quickest results are obtained if the oil and egg are not too cold. The ordinary temperature of your kitchen is just right.

Break the egg in a bowl, add about a tablespoon of Wesson Oil and beat vigorously with an egg beater or a fork—until the oil and egg are thoroughly mixed.

How long will that take? About a minute—or maybe while you count fifty, not as fast as you can count but as fast as you can beat.

Add another tablespoon of oil and beat again—vigorously.

Two tablespoons and beat again.

Two or three more and beat again.

Your mayonnaise will begin to thicken a little.

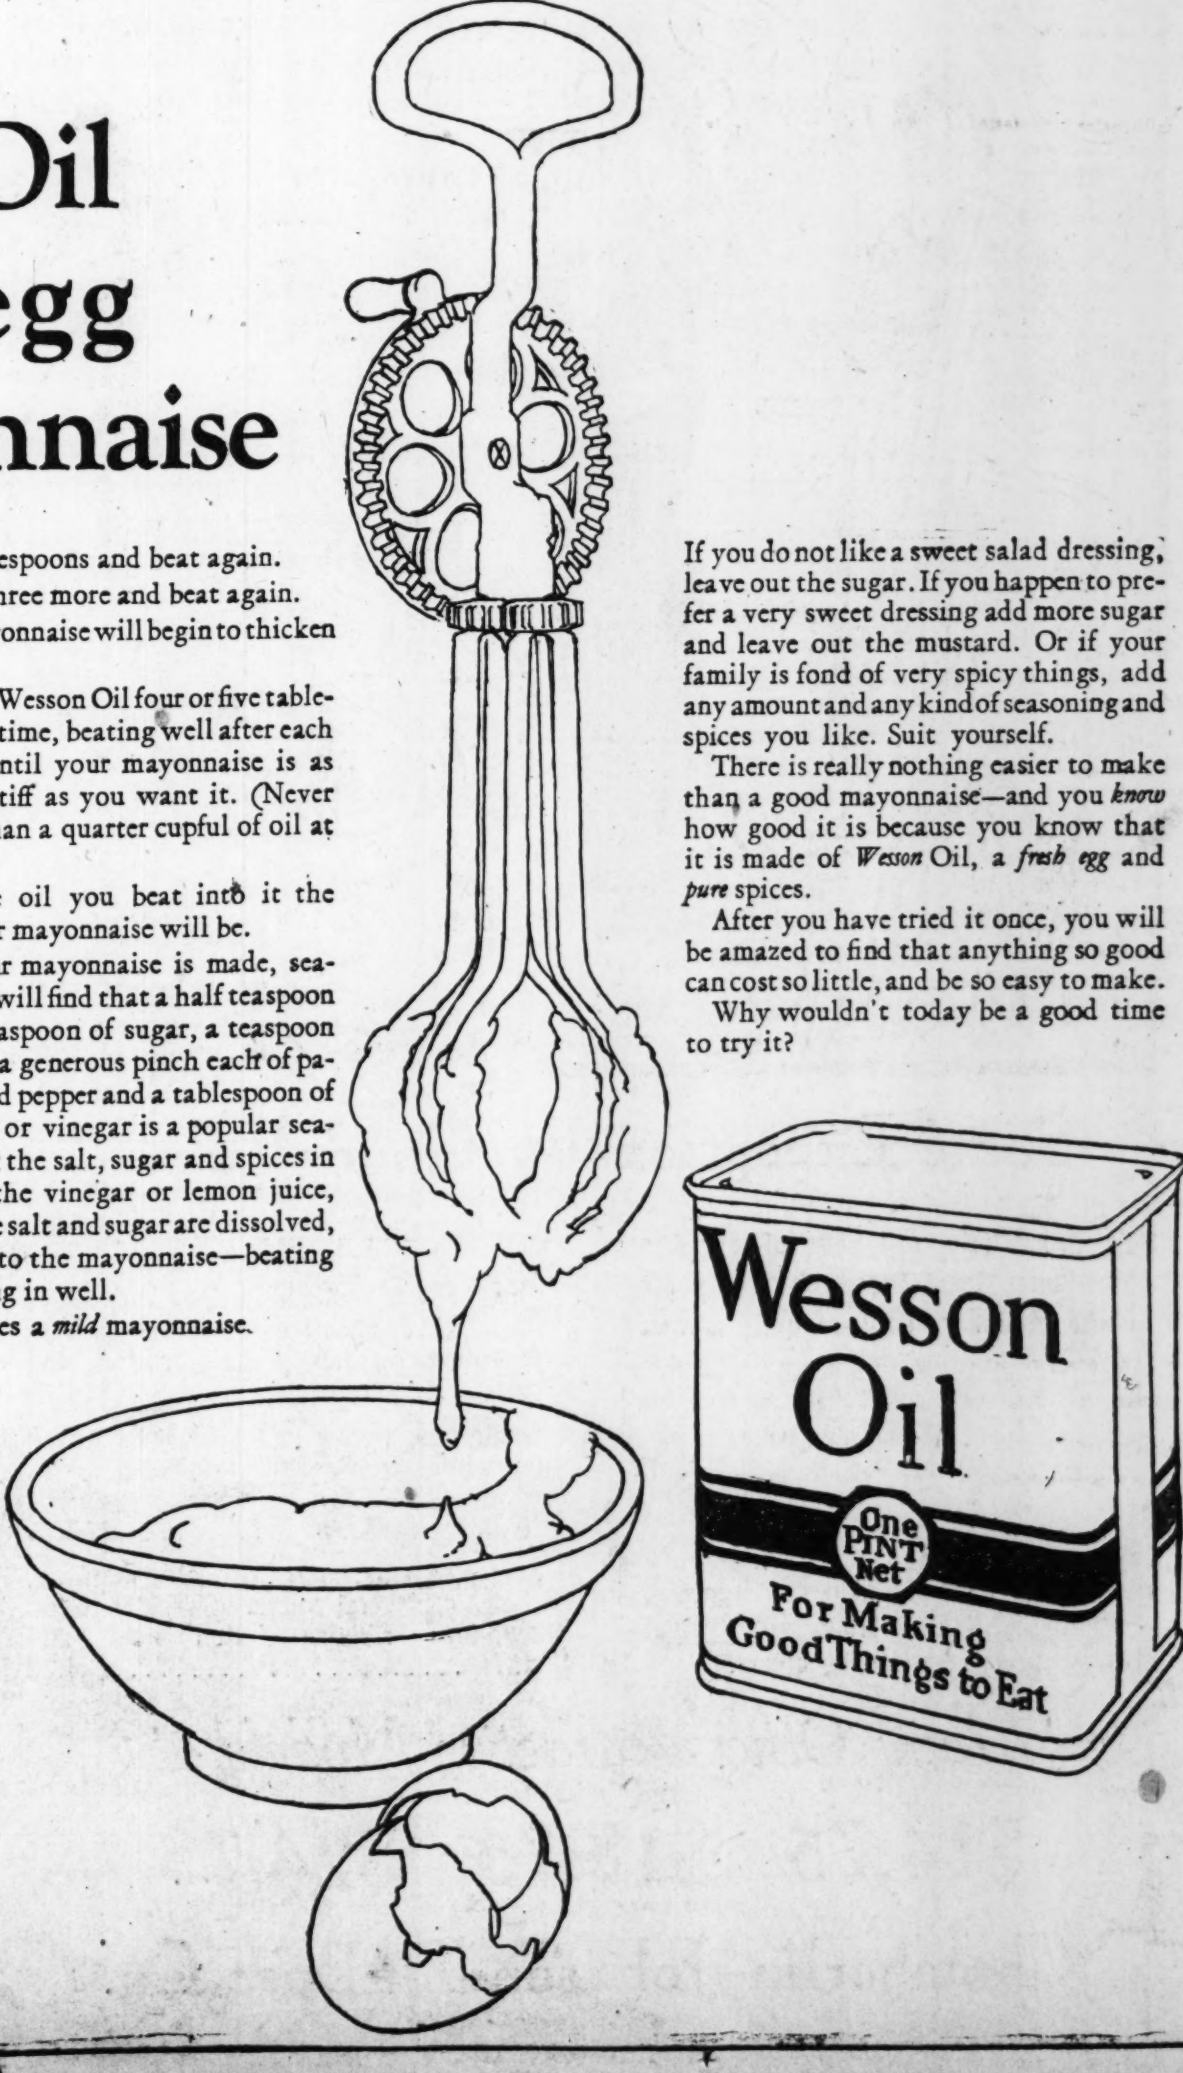

Then add Wesson Oil four or five tablespoons at a time, beating well after each addition—until your mayonnaise is as thick and stiff as you want it. (Never add more than a quarter cupful of oil at one time.)

The more oil you beat into it the thicker your mayonnaise will be.

After your mayonnaise is made, season it. You will find that a half teaspoon of salt, a teaspoon of sugar, a teaspoon of mustard, a generous pinch each of paprika and red pepper and a tablespoon of lemon juice or vinegar is a popular seasoning. Mix the salt, sugar and spices in a cup, add the vinegar or lemon juice, stir until the salt and sugar are dissolved, and pour into the mayonnaise—beating the seasoning in well.

This makes a mild mayonnaise.

BY VIOLET DARE

A Bit of Advice.

CHAPTER 30.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Vale and Lolita were driving toward the Atwood home.

"It's the most absurd thing I ever heard of," Mrs. Vale was saying vehemently. "Of course I'm not going to have the marriage annulled. You must have lost your mind. When you're lucky enough to marry a millionaire—"

"He isn't a millionaire," protested the girl, tearfully. "He won't get his money till he's thirty, and Mr. Atwood is his guardian; you know how he's going to act when he finds Dick and I eloped."

"He's a sensible man, and he won't make any fuss," retorted Mrs. Vale, although she did not feel any too sure of Atwood's actions when he heard the news that Lolita had told her that afternoon. "We'll just tell him all about it—how you and young Leigh got married a month ago, and weren't going to say anything about it, but decided that you simply couldn't bear to be separated."

"But that isn't true! I just want to see Dick; I'm worried about him. I didn't know till today that he was ill, and I hadn't heard from him for ages and was worried. So I called up the house, when I found that he'd left college a while ago, and they said that he's got scarlet fever and is quarantined! And I've got to see him."

"Of course!" Mrs. Vale agreed warmly. "Certainly you've got to see him. If you hadn't been madly in love with him you'd never have married him."

"But I don't want people to know we're married, or he can't finish college," Lolita went on, still more tearfully. "We've just got to keep it a secret till he graduates. And I've been thinking it all over, and it seems to me that if the marriage could be annulled, why then, later on, we could be married again."

"Nonsense! Later on things may be different. You just keep still and let me manage everything."

Lolita said no more. She was rather frightened. Presently Mrs. Vale continued.

"I've never let people know that you were my daughter because it made me seem so much older; you know that. And your grandmother brought you up so well, and then after you went on the stage, you got along so nicely—"

"Got along so nicely!" echoed the girl, bitterly. "When I was so poor and lonely and disheartened that I wanted to die. I'd have given anything in the world for some one to help and encourage me, but you wouldn't let me come to see you, even, because you were afraid people would know I was your daughter. As if anyone would have known!" She did not add that it was Linda Vale's hope of marrying Geoffrey Atwood that had come between them.

"I've never let people know you were my daughter."

"Well, that's all over now, dear," her mother replied complacently. "And you're very lucky indeed to have Dick Leigh in love with you. Why, you'll live in that beautiful home; you'll have everything that you want."

"Mrs. Atwood won't want me," the girl answered.

"Mrs. Atwood probably won't be there," Linda Vale replied. "Unless I'm greatly mistaken, that marriage isn't going to last long. It was all wrong in the beginning; she's not at all the woman for a man of Geoffrey Atwood's brains."

"She's a darling," Lolita exclaimed hotly. "I just saw her twice, but she was dear to me; I don't believe Mr. Atwood appreciates her. Dick and his brother are crazy about her."

"Yes, of course!" Mrs. Vale was quiet for a moment, as the car swept into the drive that led to the Atwood house. It wouldn't do to cross the girl now and get her any more excited, she reflected. Better wait till later for such differences of opinion as this one. "Now remember, leave everything to me. I'll talk to Geoff myself. I'm sure he'll let you see Dick—he can't object to that; probably the boy has been pining his heart out for you. Look at me—wipe your eyes and powder your nose; there, that's better. You must look as pretty as possible—that always counts with a man. Here we are!" and she swept up the steps and into the house, which Duncan Hale had entered but a few moments before.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Cheap, Too.

Whenever eggs and coffee appear on the same menu crush the egg shells and put them in with the coffee. They will clear it wonderfully and improve the flavor.

The Cedar Chest.

It is about time to get the cedar chest cleared out to prepare it for its summer tenants. Cover the chest this year with a cretonne cover and use it for a window seat. Then that light wrap or fur will be handy for the cool evenings.

True Economy.

The handy man removes the rubber heels from his shoes and shifts them to the opposite feet when they begin to run down on one side. Then the reverse side gets the wear and he gets double value out of one pair of rubber heels.

Potatoes are very poor at present and rather flavorless. Try soaking them before cooking, using slightly salted water. Slightly salt the water in which they are boiled, also, and when done set on back of stove to steam until perfectly dry. This will make them light and meaty and improve the flavor.

Luncheon Salad.

Eight beets, 2 cups creamed potatoes, vinegar, pepper, 1 small can green peas, 1 head of lettuce, mayonnaise.

Boil medium-sized beets till well done, peel and let stand in hot vinegar for half an hour. Remove from vinegar, scoop out center and fill with hot creamed Irish potatoes, placing a spoonful of green peas on top of the potato. Serve on lettuce, with mayonnaise. Rings of green pepper add greatly to the attractiveness of this salad when used as a garnish.—This Designer Magazine.

Officer's Right Leg Paralyzed Following Struggle With Negro

Severely bruised about the right leg Thursday in a struggle with a negro who attempted to escape from the police patrol, Officer J. W. (Bill) Mashburn, Sr., suffered injuries that resulted Friday in paralysis of the limb he hurt, and necessitated his confinement at home under the care of his family physician.

The negro, Ernest Park, had been arrested on a disorderly conduct charge, and was to be held for further investigation by the police. He was carried to the police barracks in the "Black Maria," but attempted to escape as he was being transferred from the patrol wagon into the station lieutenant's office.

When he seized the negro, Officer Mashburn was thrust against the wall of the police patrol, his right leg being mashed and bruised. Thinking his injury of a minor nature, he paid no special attention to it until he awakened Friday morning to discover he was unable to move his right leg.

FORD'S SECRETARY IS SHORT ON FACTS

Washington, May 2.—Henry Ford's private secretary, E. G. Liebold, appeared before the senate agriculture committee's Muscle Shoals hearing today in response to a subpoena and vouchsafed only limited knowledge of Ford's Muscle Shoals plans.

He asserted, however, in reference to recently published telegrams from Thomas Martin Miller to him purporting to quote President Coolidge on the Muscle Shoals subject that Miller was authorized only as a representative of Ford's Dearborn Independent and had no official standing as agent in any Muscle Shoals negotiations.

Liebold expressed ignorance of any telegrams which Chairman Norris said he was informed had been exchanged between President Coolidge and cabinet members and Henry Ford. He promised Chairman Norris that if any such telegrams existed he would urge Ford to send them to the committee.

The secretary told the committee that Ford had "recalled" W. B. Mayo, his chief engineer, who had come to Washington to testify, and added he did not know whether Mayo planned to testify later.

Major General C. C. Williams, chief of army ordnance, told the committee that he did not consider Muscle Shoals as a necessity for production of explosives during war, or fertilizer for farmers, due to the increased production of private enterprises since Muscle Shoals was built.

The general submitted a lengthy technical comparison of four bids now before the committee and the hearing adjourned until tomorrow.

Four Bids Compared.

General Williams presented the following tables comparing four bids: Ford offer—(Interest on $31,500,000 on dam No. 2):

Dam No. 2, $64,538,384.
Dam No. 3, $49,481,000.
No. 2 steam plant, U. S. N. P. No. 2, U. S. N. P. No. 1 and Waco quarry, $1,257,512.
Total, $115,906,896.

Power Companies' Offer—(Constructed by U. S.):

Dam No. 2, $87,600,000.
Dam No. 3, $47,809,320.
No. 2 steam plant, $4,500,000.
Total (less maintenance expense

U. S. N. P. No. 2 for 50 years, $50,000,000), $134,909,320.

Hooker plan:

Dam No. 2, $85,479,840 (includes No. 2 steam plant).

Dam No. 3, $27,974,708.

Total $113,454,548.

Union Carbide Company plan:

Dam No. 2, $28,324,200.

U. S. N. P. No. 2, $7,500,000.

Waco quarry $750,000.

Total $36,574,200. (This figure not comparable with totals of other bids since Union Carbide bid is for only fraction of property.)

Liebold on Stand.

When Liebold, Ford's private secretary, was called, Chairman Norris read the subpoena calling for Liebold to bring all telegrams exchanged between the Ford interests and his agents in Washington.

Liebold said he did not know of any telegram having been sent by President Coolidge to Ford. He said he had received telegrams from Miller, but that Miller did not represent Ford and had volunteered information. He did not pay a great deal of attention to Miller's telegrams, he added, because they were "gossip" and contained little real information.

Chairman Norris read a telegram sent by Liebold to Miller asking Miller to send more information by telegram and adding that an interview would be arranged at Liebold's Dearborn home. He also read the telegram sent by Miller quoting President Coolidge as saying he was "trying to deliver Muscle Shoals" to Ford.

The telegram from Miller offering more information to be obtained at the white house correspondent's conference also was read. Miller, he said, came to Dearborn of his own account. He did not know whether Miller had an interview with Ford at that time.

"Don't you know that on December 20, 1923, Mr. Ford had a telegram from the president of the United States?" Norris asked.

"I don't know. I can't recall now," Liebold said.

SINCLAIR ARGUMENTS MADE BEFORE JUSTICE

Washington, May 2.—The right of the senate to compel testimony or the production of documents before its investigating committees was challenged and defended in briefs and oral arguments presented today to Associate Justice Hoehling of the District of Columbia supreme court in the senate contempt proceeding against Harry E. Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome.

Counsel for Sinclair, supporting a motion to quash the indictment returned against the oil magnate for his refusal to answer questions before the oil committee, insisted that the construction of the statute on which the contempt charge was based was obnoxious to the fourth and fifth amendments to the constitution granting persons security in their person and property.

"The only power the senate has to compel testimony or production of documents," said Martin W. Littleton, of New York, chief counsel for Sinclair, "is in the course of the exercise of those judicial functions committed to it by the constitution, namely: the punishment of its own members for disorderly conduct, or for failure to attend sessions, the decisions of contested elections to the senate, and the determination of the qualifications of its members and the trial of impeachments."

Government counsel in reply replied that the report of congress to elicit information in order that it may legislate has been recognized since the foundation of the government and has never been successfully challenged.

The arguments, counsel said, "concerned the right of congress to its members must resort to gossip, common report, personal knowledge and the public print for accurate and detailed information concerning matters of great importance and of great public interest, and that beyond this they cannot go."

The proposition, if true, would limit the congress in the exercise of its great and necessary powers, and in many cases work to the detriment, if not the destruction, of government."
